Coastal partnership revealed

THE BIG Sur coast has been a battleground for years, its residents and businesses successfully thwarting attempts by the U.S. Government to "federalize" it. Rep. Leon Panetta recently revealed a coalition of residents, politicians, county officials, businesses and civic leaders who have joined forces to oppose a bill recently proposed by Sen. Pete Wilson and to build on local community efforts to preserve the area. The group was termed the Coastal Partnership for Big Sur and consists of groups as diverse as Friends of the Big Sur Coast and the Monterey Regional Park District. (Holly McFarland photo. Helicopter provided courtesy of Cypress Helicopters.)

Joint city-Pine Inn parking plan postponed

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PINE INN owners were told Tuesday night that they will have to pay half of the costs of an approximately $1 million joint parking garage venture before the Carmel City Council will consider the project.

With that position so stated, the council gave Pine Inn owners until the July session to develop a counter-proposal for financing the joint parking garage, planned to be developed as part of the concept for the Harrison Memorial Library annex, northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

By virtue of postponing a decision on the Pine Inn parking lot venture, the council also delayed without discussion action on whether to proceed with plans for the library annex. The Pine Inn proposal was not the only parking issue on the agenda as the council spent more than five hours on a multitude of matters. The council:

- Appointed a citizens committee to review the financing reports for a proposed Sunset Center parking garage.
- Chose to keep open the temporary parking lot on Dolores Street while negotiations with the Carmel Foundation on senior housing are reopened. A report is expected at the July 1 council meeting. Meanwhile, the contract with the Monterey County Housing Authority and bids for a housing project are put on hold until September.
- Sent back to the planning commission a proposed ordinance relaxing controls on ice cream parlors because of concerns over parking and seating arrangements.
- Adopted an emergency ordinance to ban fires on Carmel Beach and the beach slopes after 10 p.m. The ordinance is permanent and does not just cover the Fourth of July holiday.

- Adopted an emergency ordinance that prohibits alcohol on Carmel Beach after 10 p.m. The ordinance is designed to curb what the city calls "late night rowdiness" at the beach.
- Refused on a 3-1 vote to reconsider the city's ban on live music. Councilwoman Helen Arnold dissented and Mayor Clint Eastwood stepped down because of a potential conflict of interest. Eastwood is part-owner of the Hog's Breath restaurant and bar.
- Reappointed Jean White and Roger Premier to the cultural commission. Appointed new members Loren Rice and Bob Infelise to replace incumbent Suzanne DeClerque and to fill a vacancy.
- Appointed Sheldon Smith and John Kennedy to the library board replacing incumbents Bernard Anderson and Ron Kabat.

- Appointed John Creighton to the forestry commission to fill a vacancy.
- Agreed to design changes to Piccadilly Park and asked for a report back on the details of a proposed sculpture garden there.
- Refused a proposal to provide Scenic Road residents with special stickers so their guests can park on the street after it is closed to parking one-half hour following sunset.
- Delayed a position on changes to Highway 68 until the council can hear a full report from the city of Pacific Grove and representatives of the Holman Highway Task Force.
- Adopted on final reading an ordinance that bans fireworks on Carmel Beach on the Fourth of July.

People magazine tactics

Dear Editor:

I am appalled that the Pine Cone would resort to People magazine tactics to fill the pages of this weekly paper.

I am referring to the interview in the May 22 issue with the suspect in the murder of Ray Podell.

You've devoted this space to the suspect not just because of the crime he is said to have committed, but because it's somehow related to a movie star's campaign. Clint Eastwood is news; Ray isn't—and he should be.

This sensationalism is below the standards I usually see in your paper. Devoting attention to this aspect of the crime seems askew. Why not devote an article to the positive, healthy, and happy life that Ray Podell shared with everyone he met, and the positive effects that he will continue to give to all of us?

Please give some peace to those who are dealing with this from another perspective—those who have lost the physical presence of someone they love.

No news value

Dear Editor:

How disappointing to open the May 22nd issue of the Pine Cone and find yet another feature article on David Archer—extremely poor taste in my opinion.

I find it difficult to conceive that you and your staff feel there is any value in this type of dramatization. I did not know the victim personally, but from what I've learned about him since the incident it seems to me that if there are any articles to be written, one about Ray Podell, who he was, and how he chose to live his life might be a far greater contribution to the community than the two you have selected to print thus far.

'Amazing' interview

Dear Editor:

I have never really cared for the National Enquirer type of "journalism." However, the very least we should expect from Mr. Gardner this week is an "amazing" interview with the other man . . . you know, the one who died.

What did Michael Gardner do before he began expecting the mayor to provide all of his copy? Was he a journalist? I can't remember.

Reckless disregard

Dear Editor:

There are too many conscientious, qualified members of this community who offer their time, effort and health, to serve, valiantly and with integrity, on both boards and commissions, and as city staff, to allow irresponsible individuals the freedom to act or speak in a reckless disregard of their actions.

There is no place for unqualified "neighbors" to sit "in judgment" upon the rest of the community and their individual personal business, or to throw the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" upon the rest of us.

By the very fact of an individual sitting upon a city board commission, any remark or comment made, whether pertinent or not, is put into an "official" category, and carries the connotation of "being official," or "they know whereof they speak." Therefore, all utterances must be weighed with thought, judgment and responsibility!

If appointments to boards/commissions are made from the citizenry, and they are well intentioned, but not necessarily fully qualified, then it is the duty of the city to train that person in the responsibilities of the position to which he has been appointed. It should be unnecessary to say that the same holds true for any city employee that sits on a board or commission.

In most respects, governmental immunity is an excellent, and very necessary, protection for public officials and/or employees, so that lawsuits do not fly around, willy-nilly. There would then be no one of any sense or quality that would hold public office! But! The law does hold the opportunity for redress of wrongs committed by those with reckless disregard of their duties and responsibilities. This is a part of our democracy and our Constitutional rights.

"To you, from failing hands, we throw this torch. Be yours to hold it high. Ye shall not break faith with us."

Vote was unanimous

Dear Editor:

The Pine Cone's statement that I opposed the appointment of Don Wiesner to the Carmel Unified School District Board is in error. The final vote for his appointment was unanimous, and I support his appointment 100 percent.

The board was impressed by the response of eight outstanding citizens and their willingness to devote so much time and effort to the school district; I believe I speak for all board members in saying that the choice was not an easy one. With the addition of Don Wiesner to the board, we look forward to continuing our efforts to think and act independently, but in the spirit of cooperation.

Garland Park hazard

Dear Editor:

The recent appropriate notice from our fire protection district about the removal of inflammables is very important. This reminds me of one of the biggest fire hazards in the Valley that has never received proper attention.

Garland Park is a remarkable area and is receiving, as it should, more and more attention and use by an increasing number of people. Ever since the park opened I have had an immense amount of pleasure from hiking its many interesting trails.

Every year from July on until "the rains" dead grass in combination with downed timber and trash represent all of the essentials for a conflagration which once started could sweep into the oaks in the upper elevations.

I have also noted that with the increase in park use an increase of cigarette butts scattered in the pathways in spite of the request that smoking within park limits be curtailed. It takes only one irresponsible moron to chuck a butt into the dry grass to start a disastrous fire especially when fanned by up-valley winds which invariably come in the afternoons.

A similar condition holds true in the upper mesa. Why some horse or cattle person does not make use of this abundant fodder either by haying-off or feeding-off is incomprehensible.

May I suggest the fire district responsible for the Garland Park area follow some of its own regulations, especially on the valley floor. A controlled backfire would quickly remove the hazard of a much more serious wildfire.

May I urge the users of Garland Park to push for a recognition of this hazard and its solution.

Charity begins at home

Dear Editor:

Who says charity begins at home?

Since I am aware the police department will not reverse an overzealous officer's actions I am enclosing payment on this parking ticket, but under protest.

The City of Carmel does not provide any disabled parking spaces (even Fisherman's Wharf and Cannery Row in Monterey do this); therefore, after circling the streets several times, and because my handicaps do not allow me to walk but short distances, and we had reservations for Mother's Day brunch, I took one of three parking spaces in the bank parking lot between San Carlos and Mission streets.

We were parked there for one hour and 15 minutes and returned to find the ticket. As far as I could tell I was the only local car ticketed. Or, perhaps I was ticketed because my car carries a 100-percent disabled veteran's license from the State of California. Let's not ticket the tourists. I am more likely to pay the fine, as I am here.

Another question, if that is private property, and the local police are the functioning authority there, it should be so posted.

Too high a price

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my concern over the intersection of Carmel Valley Road and Boronda Road. The sycamore and eucalyptus trees at that intersection are indeed pretty, but they create a very dangerous traffic hazard.

The trees are dangerously closer to the highway than federal safety standards prescribe, and it is extremely difficult to see oncoming traffic when pulling out from Boronda Road. Furthermore, practically no motorists drive within the posted 35-mph speed limit at that point on Carmel Valley Road.

Over a year ago, I was one of 200 residents that met to express our views on the trees. I was in the minority when I stated that the intersection was unsafe. I was literally booed down by people who see only the tranquil beauty of the life-threatening trees, and do not see the real danger of that section of Carmel Valley Road.

I am a strong believer in prevention whenever possible. I think we should listen to Bruce McClain, Monterey County public works director, and apply for a $45,000 federal highway safety grant to bring that section of Carmel Valley up to federal safety standards and remove some of the trees.

Even removing a few of these trees will help safety. The trees are lovely, but if one life is lost because of them, it is too high a price to pay.

Thank you.

Wright blasts Eastwood's purge of planners

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood's decision to dismiss four planning commissioners Tuesday was assailed by Councilman James Wright, who charged that the action is vindictive and smacks of "patronage expected in the boroughs of New York City or the wards of Chicago."

Wright verbally criticized the new council for its 3-2 decision to fire commissioners Sandy Swain, Gene Cava, Tom Nash and Marjorie Montelius. Councilwoman Helen Arnold joined Wright in dissenting while new Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer supported Eastwood.

By the same 3-2 margin, the council approved a declaration of emergency that allowed the new appointments to be quickly confirmed. Wright called the emergency declaration "a sham."

Arnold then switched to an affirmative vote while Wright continued to dissent on the replacements.

The new commissioners are: newspaper publisher Bill Brown, architects Fred Keeble and Olof Dahlstrand, and realtor Carla Ramsey.

They will join recent Eastwood appointees Ed Hicks and Bruce Roberts, who were selected to replace Gene Hammond and Art Mertens. While Eastwood dismissed Nash, Swain, Montelius and Cava, the replacement of Hammond and Mertens occurred when their terms had expired.

The overhaul of the commission leaves only one member with any experience and that is Ken White, the former president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education. White joined the commission just six months ago as an appointee of former Mayor Charlotte Townsend.

Eastwood defended his decision to replace the four planning commissioners, saying "the public has asked for a change in an overwhelming way." He was referring to a continual campaign theme that the commission was unresponsive and rude to the public.

But Councilman Wright, an incumbent who was not up for re-election during the Eastwood campaign, sees things in a different light.

In a prepared statement, Wright called the action "unprecedented" and charged that the decision was made in secret without benefit of public discussion.

"The decision to take this action has already been made contrary to the intent of California's open meeting laws as evidenced by published statements and the material in our agenda packet," Wright said.

"Even more disturbing are suggestions that a group or committee composed of persons not identified to the general public may have played a decisive role."

"When the legislature enacted section

COUNCILMAN James Wright sharply criticized Mayor Clint Eastwood's decision to dismiss four planning commissioners, calling the process "vindictiveness" and a "sham."

54974 of the government code, it did so in recognition that the general public has traditionally been denied access to information regarding vacancies on boards and committees, thereby denying most citizens the opportunity to nominate for consideration persons whose particular strength, background, experience, perspective and talents might contribute significantly to efficient and representative policy development and administration in local government," Wright continued.

THE DECLARATION of emergency in this situation is a sham intended to circumvent the purpose of the legislation."

A former planning commissioner, Wright disagrees with comments that the commission was rude and unresponsive to the public.

"During the years that I was on the planning commission I did not once see or hear any commissioners act in any way that would bring discredit to themselves or the commission or that would give rise to any suspicion that they were motivated by anything other than a desire to do what was best for the entire community," he said.

Wright also criticized Eastwood for his treatment of the commission.

"Instead of being treated in this shabby manner, the commission should be recognized for their considerable contribution to the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea while making difficult and sometimes unwelcome decisions in support of the goals and objectives of the general plan."

"Finally, this entire episode is far more typical of the patronage expected in the boroughs of New York City or the wards in Chicago. The motivations and vindictiveness so evident here should, I hope, give the good citizens of this village pause to reflect on what has really happened today," Wright concluded.

A lone clap from the back of the room following Wright's comments prompted Eastwood to say, "well you have one supporter anyway."

Eastwood pointed out that the election results indicated that the public wanted change and he would be "remiss" in not instituting his campaign promises.

During a break in the meeting, Eastwood told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that Wright is "mistaken," and "doesn't have any facts."

Eastwood defended his selections, saying that "I think we'll have a planning commission that is first rate."

WRIGHT DID support the appointment of Dahlstrand, but questioned the wisdom of having three architects (Dahlstrand, Hicks and Keeble) on the commission.

He also believes that Brown, publisher of the Pine Cone, will have continual conflicts of interest.

Brown responds that he will step down from any review of issues posing potential conflicts of interest "as I would expect any commissioner to do."

Brown also guaranteed that he will not use his powers as publisher to influence reporting of the meetings in his newspaper.

Contacted Wednesday morning, Swain said she did not have much to say.

"I think it's all been said. I don't see any point in beating a dead horse," said Swain, who had served on the commission for nearly a decade.

Cava added, "I've never had a call from Mr. Eastwood. I've never had a letter. Officially, I don't know anything. It's incredible, that's all I can say."

Nash said it is not the commission that has been rude, but Eastwood's administration.

"I'm willing to stand on the strength of my voting record. I deny that I was discourteous to anyone. I think the only discourtesy has been evidenced by the present administration in its haste to get on with their plan," he said.

There still is some confusion over terms to be cleared. Three of the four terms expire in May 1989, but the position formerly held by Swain is up for reappointment in May 1987. There was no designation of who is replacing Swain so at press time it was still uncertain which new commissioner would face reappointment next year.

Wright did not present the only critique of the council Tuesday.

Jane Mayer, longtime Carmel resident and chairwoman of the former General Plan Advisory Committee, leveled a series of complaints at the new council.

Mayer, saying she was representing the "grave concerns" of "a number of Carmel residents," complained that decisions are made in private, citizens are unable to attend meetings and that there is a "steamroller" effect when caution is needed.

"Too many residents have found themselves kept out of these council meetings. Most residents who care about the business of their community being carried out in their name want to know all they can about that business," she said.

"Some people come to this council out of self-interest and when their position is heard, they leave caring little about the rest of the agenda items. Most truly concerned residents do not fall into this category. They feel that the present procedure for admission to these chambers is discriminatory as it keeps them in ignorance of what is being done in their name. Reading about it in the papers is not what they want as it excludes them from the process of government."

BUT MORE importantly, Mayer believes, are concerns that decisions are made before the council meets in public session.

"It has been reported that too many decisions are being made in advance of the issues being aired before this body. It is the intent of the law that deliberations be conducted openly. To quote, only in part, 'the people of this state and of this village do not yield their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them.'"

"We, the people, do not give our public servants the right to decide what is good for us to know and what is not good for us to know. We, the people, insist on remaining informed in order to retain control over the instruments we have created."

Mayer also criticizes what she calls the "steamroller effect."

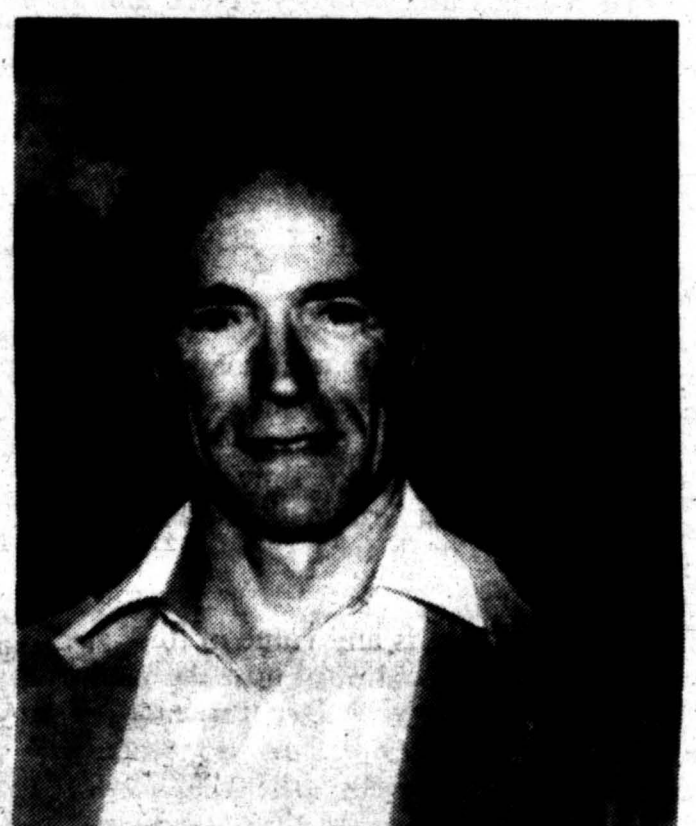

"It has been reported that there are many complaints regarding the steamroller effect by which the will of this administration is forced upon the people. The 'let's go for it' approach is felt by many to make deliberation impossible."

"That more time must be allowed for more caution in the consideration of matters of considerable importance to the community as a whole. And further, that the city's business to date is being conducted with little or no regard to proper rules of order."

Mayer's final point is that Eastwood's decisions to replace the planning commissioners and abolish the Business License and Code Review Board is "vindictiveness."

"There is also a complaint that there exists in recent past, present and future planned action a pervasive impression of vindictiveness. That Business License and Code Review Boards, planning commissions, and ordinances tell me that I can't do what I want to do so let's overthrow anybody or any commission, board or body that hampers me in any way."

"All commissions, boards and bodies are in existence by the will of the people for the purpose of aiding in the proper conduct of the people's business and necessarily places limits by law on the greed and self interest that, in varying degrees, is unfortunately inherent in all men."

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood defended his purge of the planning commission by saying the people asked overwhelmingly for a change in city government.

New commissioners to get orientation

THE NEW Carmel Planning Commissioners will get an introduction June 11 to their duties and projects they will be asked to vote on in future meetings.

The regular planning commission meeting scheduled at 4 p.m. Wednesday, June 11 in Carmel City Council Chambers has been changed to an orientation meeting for the six new members and a review for the one holdover from the prior commission, Ken White. The regular meeting has been rescheduled for Wednesday, June 18.

Newly appointed at the June 3 Carmel City Council meeting (see related story this issue) architects Olof Dahlstrand and Fred Keeble, realtor Carla Ramsey and Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook publisher Bill Brown, will join architect Ed Hicks and Monterey police officer Bruce Roberts in their first meeting as planning commissioners.

Hicks and Roberts were appointed by the city council May 6.

Planning Director Diane White said the meeting is intended as a workshop for the commission to go over procedures and duties and will serve as a study session on major items. Those include two use permits applications for ice cream parlors, one on Ocean Avenue and one on San Carlos Street, one for Sade's bar on Ocean Avenue, R-4 District zoning and pending specific plans for large properties such as the Countess Claudé de Kinoull estate on 11th Avenue near Junipero and the Bennett property on Dolores Street and Second Avenue.

White said that no votes will be required by the commissioners during the informational meeting and it will be open to the public.

KEN WHITE, a planning commissioner for six months, is the only survivor of the purge undertaken by Mayor Clint Eastwood.

Coastal partnership revealed

THE BIG Sur coast has been a battleground for years, its residents and businesses successfully thwarting attempts by the U.S. Government to "federalize" it. Rep. Leon Panetta recently revealed a coalition of residents, politicians, county officials, businesses and civic leaders who have joined forces to oppose a bill recently proposed by Sen. Pete Wilson and to build on local community efforts to preserve the area. The group was termed the Coastal Partnership for Big Sur and consists of groups as diverse as Friends of the Big Sur Coast and the Monterey Regional Park District. (Holly McFarland photo. Helicopter provided courtesy of Cypress Helicopters.)

Joint city-Pine Inn parking plan postponed

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PINE INN owners were told Tuesday night that they will have to pay half of the costs of an approximately $1 million joint parking garage venture before the Carmel City Council will consider the project.

With that position so stated, the council gave Pine Inn owners until the July session to develop a counter-proposal for financing the joint parking garage, planned to be developed as part of the concept for the Harrison Memorial Library annex, northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue.

By virtue of postponing a decision on the Pine Inn parking lot venture, the council also delayed without discussion action on whether to proceed with plans for the library annex. The Pine Inn proposal was not the only parking issue on the agenda as the council spent more than five hours on a multitude of matters. The council:

- Appointed a citizens committee to review the financing reports for a proposed Sunset Center parking garage.
- Chose to keep open the temporary parking lot on Dolores Street while negotiations with the Carmel Foundation on senior housing are reopened. A report is expected at the July 1 council meeting. Meanwhile, the contract with the Monterey County Housing Authority and bids for a housing project are put on hold until September.
- Sent back to the planning commission a proposed ordinance relaxing controls on ice cream parlors because of concerns over parking and seating arrangements.
- Adopted an emergency ordinance to ban fires on Carmel Beach and the beach slopes after 10 p.m. The ordinance is permanent and does not just cover the Fourth of July holiday.

- Adopted an emergency ordinance that prohibits alcohol on Carmel Beach after 10 p.m. The ordinance is designed to curb what the city calls "late night rowdiness" at the beach.
- Refused on a 3-1 vote to reconsider the city's ban on live music. Councilwoman Helen Arnold dissented and Mayor Clint Eastwood stepped down because of a potential conflict of interest. Eastwood is part-owner of the Hog's Breath restaurant and bar.
- Reappointed Jean White and Roger Premier to the cultural commission. Appointed new members Loren Rice and Bob Infelise to replace incumbent Suzanne DeClerque and to fill a vacancy.
- Appointed Sheldon Smith and John Kennedy to the library board replacing incumbents Bernard Anderson and Ron Kabat.

- Appointed John Creighton to the forestry commission to fill a vacancy.
- Agreed to design changes to Piccadilly Park and asked for a report back on the details of a proposed sculpture garden there.
- Refused a proposal to provide Scenic Road residents with special stickers so their guests can park on the street after it is closed to parking one-half hour following sunset.
- Delayed a position on changes to Highway 68 until the council can hear a full report from the city of Pacific Grove and representatives of the Holman Highway Task Force.
- Adopted on final reading an ordinance that bans fireworks on Carmel Beach on the Fourth of July.

People magazine tactics

Dear Editor:

I am appalled that the Pine Cone would resort to People magazine tactics to fill the pages of this weekly paper.

I am referring to the interview in the May 22 issue with the suspect in the murder of Ray Podell.

You've devoted this space to the suspect not just because of the crime he is said to have committed, but because it's somehow related to a movie star's campaign. Clint Eastwood is news; Ray isn't—and he should be.

This sensationalism is below the standards I usually see in your paper. Devoting attention to this aspect of the crime seems askew. Why not devote an article to the positive, healthy, and happy life that Ray Podell shared with everyone he met, and the positive effects that he will continue to give to all of us?

Please give some peace to those who are dealing with this from another perspective—those who have lost the physical presence of someone they love.

Susann Cate Lynn

No news value

Dear Editor:

How disappointing to open the May 22nd issue of the Pine Cone and find yet another feature article on David Archer—extremely poor taste in my opinion.

I find it difficult to conceive that you and your staff feel there is any value in this type of dramatization. I did not know the victim personally, but from what I've learned about him since the incident it seems to me that if there are any articles to be written, one about Ray Podell, who he was, and how he chose to live his life might be a far greater contribution to the community than the two you have selected to print thus far.

'Amazing' interview

Dear Editor:

I have never really cared for the National Enquirer type of "journalism." However, the very least we should expect from Mr. Gardner this week is an "amazing" interview with the other man . . . you know, the one who died.

What did Michael Gardner do before he began expecting the mayor to provide all of his copy? Was he a journalist? I can't remember.

Reckless disregard

Dear Editor:

There are too many conscientious, qualified members of this community who offer their time, effort and health, to serve, valiantly and with integrity, on both boards and commissions, and as city staff, to allow irresponsible individuals the freedom to act or speak in a reckless disregard of their actions.

There is no place for unqualified "neighbors" to sit "in judgment" upon the rest of the community and their individual personal business, or to throw the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" upon the rest of us.

By the very fact of an individual sitting upon a city board commission, any remark or comment made, whether pertinent or not, is put into an "official" category, and carries the connotation of "being official," or "they know whereof they speak." Therefore, all utterances must be weighed with thought, judgment and responsibility!

If appointments to boards/commissions are made from the citizenry, and they are well intentioned, but not necessarily fully qualified, then it is the duty of the city to train that person in the responsibilities of the position to which he has been appointed. It should be unnecessary to say that the same holds true for any city employee that sits on a board or commission.

In most respects, governmental immunity is an excellent, and very necessary, protection for public officials and/or employees, so that lawsuits do not fly around, willy-nilly. There would then be no one of any sense or quality that would hold public office! But! The law does hold the opportunity for redress of wrongs committed by those with reckless disregard of their duties and responsibilities. This is a part of our democracy and our Constitutional rights.

"To you, from failing hands, we throw this torch. Be yours to hold it high. Ye shall not break faith with us."

Vote was unanimous

Dear Editor:

The Pine Cone's statement that I opposed the appointment of Don Wiesner to the Carmel Unified School District Board is in error. The final vote for his appointment was unanimous, and I support his appointment 100 percent.

The board was impressed by the response of eight outstanding citizens and their willingness to devote so much time and effort to the school district; I believe I speak for all board members in saying that the choice was not an easy one. With the addition of Don Wiesner to the board, we look forward to continuing our efforts to think and act independently, but in the spirit of cooperation.

Garland Park hazard

Dear Editor:

The recent appropriate notice from our fire protection district about the removal of inflammables is very important. This reminds me of one of the biggest fire hazards in the Valley that has never received proper attention.

Garland Park is a remarkable area and is receiving, as it should, more and more attention and use by an increasing number of people. Ever since the park opened I have had an immense amount of pleasure from hiking its many interesting trails.

Every year from July on until "the rains" dead grass in combination with downed timber and trash represent all of the essentials for a conflagration which once started could sweep into the oaks in the upper elevations.

I have also noted that with the increase in park use an increase of cigarette butts scattered in the pathways in spite of the request that smoking within park limits be curtailed. It takes only one irresponsible moron to chuck a butt into the dry grass to start a disastrous fire especially when fanned by up-valley winds which invariably come in the afternoons.

A similar condition holds true in the upper mesa. Why some horse or cattle person does not make use of this abundant fodder either by haying-off or feeding-off is incomprehensible.

May I suggest the fire district responsible for the Garland Park area follow some of its own regulations, especially on the valley floor. A controlled backfire would quickly remove the hazard of a much more serious wildfire.

May I urge the users of Garland Park to push for a recognition of this hazard and its solution.

Charity begins at home

Dear Editor:

Who says charity begins at home?

Since I am aware the police department will not reverse an overzealous officer's actions I am enclosing payment on this parking ticket, but under protest.

The City of Carmel does not provide any disabled parking spaces (even Fisherman's Wharf and Cannery Row in Monterey do this); therefore, after circling the streets several times, and because my handicaps do not allow me to walk but short distances, and we had reservations for Mother's Day brunch, I took one of three parking spaces in the bank parking lot between San Carlos and Mission streets.

We were parked there for one hour and 15 minutes and returned to find the ticket. As far as I could tell I was the only local car ticketed. Or, perhaps I was ticketed because my car carries a 100-percent disabled veteran's license from the State of California. Let's not ticket the tourists. I am more likely to pay the fine, as I am here.

Another question, if that is private property, and the local police are the functioning authority there, it should be so posted.

My wife and I have motored extensively throughout many of our United States and Canada, and have consistently received courtesy and consideration because of my disabled veterans' plate, even in Quebec, where they seldom warm to American tourists. I had to come home to pay my first parking fine.

Too high a price

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my concern over the intersection of Carmel Valley Road and Boronda Road. The sycamore and eucalyptus trees at that intersection are indeed pretty, but they create a very dangerous traffic hazard.

The trees are dangerously closer to the highway than federal safety standards prescribe, and it is extremely difficult to see oncoming traffic when pulling out from Boronda Road. Furthermore, practically no motorists drive within the posted 35-mph speed limit at that point on Carmel Valley Road.

Over a year ago, I was one of 200 residents that met to express our views on the trees. I was in the minority when I stated that the intersection was unsafe. I was literally booed down by people who see only the tranquil beauty of the life-threatening trees, and do not see the real danger of that section of Carmel Valley Road.

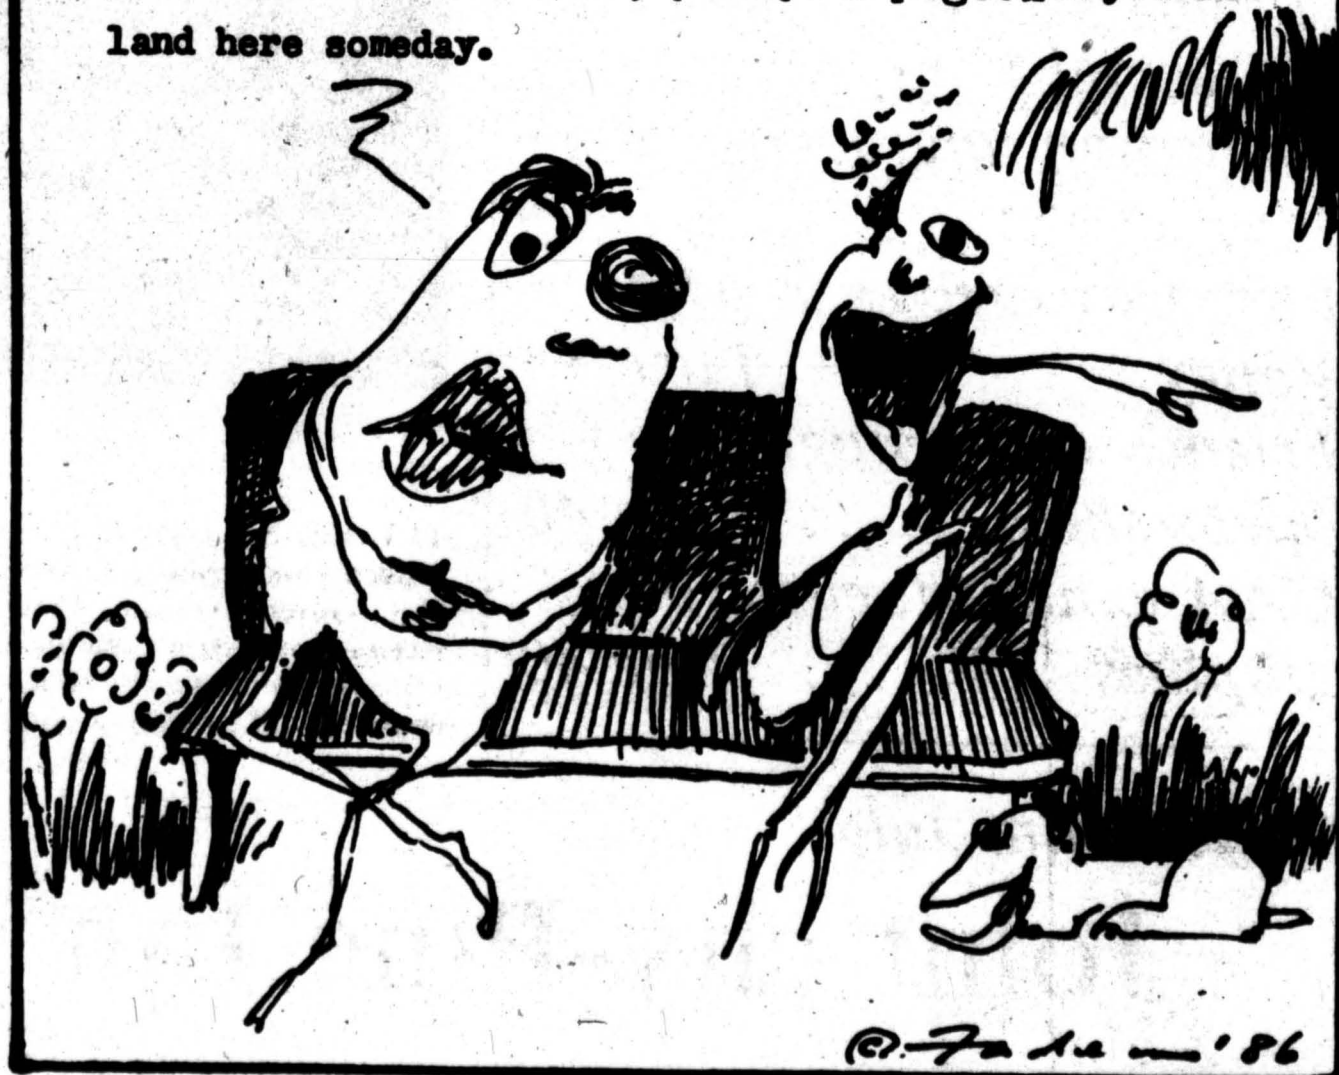

I am a strong believer in prevention whenever possible. I think we should listen to Bruce McClain, Monterey County public works director, and apply for a $45,000 federal highway safety grant to bring that section of Carmel Valley up to federal safety standards and remove some of the trees.

Even removing a few of these trees will help safety. The trees are lovely, but if one life is lost because of them, it is too high a price to pay.

Thank you.

My little lady and I sit in Picadilly Park everyday just so we can feel the rush of a pagoda effect in the midst of a busy village. Half a mil, say I? An affectionate sum when you consider the untold pleasures of a hidden Shangrila where notions of a public restroom dazzle the civilized mind. Who knows! If we take out the rails, perhaps a pigeon may even land here someday.

Wright blasts Eastwood's purge of planners

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood's decision to dismiss four planning commissioners Tuesday was assailed by Councilman James Wright, who charged that the action is vindictive and smacks of "patronage expected in the boroughs of New York City or the wards of Chicago."

Wright verbally criticized the new council for its 3-2 decision to fire commissioners Sandy Swain, Gene Cava, Tom Nash and Marjorie Montelius. Councilwoman Helen Arnold joined Wright in dissenting while new Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer supported Eastwood.

By the same 3-2 margin, the council approved a declaration of emergency that allowed the new appointments to be quickly confirmed. Wright called the emergency declaration "a sham."

Arnold then switched to an affirmative vote while Wright continued to dissent on the replacements.

The new commissioners are: newspaper publisher Bill Brown, architects Fred Keeble and Olof Dahlstrand, and realtor Carla Ramsey.

They will join recent Eastwood appointees Ed Hicks and Bruce Roberts, who were selected to replace Gene Hammond and Art Mertens. While Eastwood dismissed Nash, Swain, Montelius and Cava, the replacement of Hammond and Mertens occurred when their terms had expired.

The overhaul of the commission leaves only one member with any experience and that is Ken White, the former president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education. White joined the commission just six months ago as an appointee of former Mayor Charlotte Townsend.

Eastwood defended his decision to replace the four planning commissioners, saying "the public has asked for a change in an overwhelming way." He was referring to a continual campaign theme that the commission was unresponsive and rude to the public.

But Councilman Wright, an incumbent who was not up for re-election during the Eastwood campaign, sees things in a different light.

In a prepared statement, Wright called the action "unprecedented" and charged that the decision was made in secret without benefit of public discussion.

"The decision to take this action has already been made contrary to the intent of California's open meeting laws as evidenced by published statements and the material in our agenda packet," Wright said.

"Even more disturbing are suggestions that a group or committee composed of persons not identified to the general public may have played a decisive role."

"When the legislature enacted section

COUNCILMAN James Wright sharply criticized Mayor Clint Eastwood's decision to dismiss four planning commissioners, calling the process "vindictiveness" and a "sham."

54974 of the government code, it did so in recognition that the general public has traditionally been denied access to information regarding vacancies on boards and committees, thereby denying most citizens the opportunity to nominate for consideration persons whose particular strength, background, experience, perspective and talents might contribute significantly to efficient and representative policy development and administration in local government," Wright continued.

'THE DECLARATION of emergency in this situation is a sham intended to circumvent the purpose of the legislation."

A former planning commissioner, Wright disagrees with comments that the commission was rude and unresponsive to the public.

"During the years that I was on the planning commission I did not once see or hear any commissioners act in any way that would bring discredit to themselves or the commission or that would give rise to any suspicion that they were motivated by anything other than a desire to do what was best for the entire community," he said.

Wright also criticized Eastwood for his treatment of the commission.

"Instead of being treated in this shabby manner, the commission should be recognized for their considerable contribution to the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea while making difficult and sometimes unwelcome decisions in support of the goals and objectives of the general plan."

"Finally, this entire episode is far more typical of the patronage expected in the boroughs of New York City or the wards in Chicago. The motivations and vindictiveness so evident here should, I hope, give the good citizens of this village pause to reflect on what has really happened today," Wright concluded.

A lone clap from the back of the room following Wright's comments prompted Eastwood to say, "well you have one supporter anyway."

Eastwood pointed out that the election results indicated that the public wanted change and he would be "remiss" in not instituting his campaign promises.

During a break in the meeting, Eastwood told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that Wright is "mistaken," and "doesn't have any facts."

Eastwood defended his selections, saying that "I think we'll have a planning commission that is first rate."

WRIGHT DID support the appointment of Dahlstrand, but questioned the wisdom of having three architects (Dahlstrand, Hicks and Keeble) on the commission.

He also believes that Brown, publisher of the Pine Cone, will have continual conflicts of interest.

Brown responds that he will step down from any review of issues posing potential conflicts of interest "as I would expect any commissioner to do."

Brown also guaranteed that he will not use his powers as publisher to influence reporting of the meetings in his newspaper.

Contacted Wednesday morning, Swain said she did not have much to say.

"I think it's all been said. I don't see any point in beating a dead horse," said Swain, who had served on the commission for nearly a decade.

Cava added, "I've never had a call from Mr. Eastwood. I've never had a letter. Officially, I don't know anything. It's incredible, that's all I can say."

Nash said it is not the commission that has been rude, but Eastwood's administration.

"I'm willing to stand on the strength of my voting record. I deny that I was discourteous to anyone. I think the only discourtesy has been evidenced by the present administration in its haste to get on with their plan," he said.

There still is some confusion over terms to be cleared. Three of the four terms expire in May 1989, but the position formerly held by Swain is up for reappointment in May 1987. There was no designation of who is replacing Swain so at press time it was still uncertain which new commissioner would face reappointment next year.

Wright did not present the only critique of the council Tuesday.

Jane Mayer, longtime Carmel resident and chairwoman of the former General Plan Advisory Committee, leveled a series of complaints at the new council.

Mayer, saying she was representing the "grave concerns" of "a number of Carmel residents," complained that decisions are made in private, citizens are unable to attend meetings and that there is a "steamroller" effect when caution is needed.

"Too many residents have found themselves kept out of these council meetings. Most residents who care about the business of their community being carried out in their name want to know all they can about that business," she said.

"Some people come to this council out of self-interest and when their position is heard, they leave caring little about the rest of the agenda items. Most truly concerned residents do not fall into this category. They feel that the present procedure for admission to these chambers is discriminatory as it keeps them in ignorance of what is being done in their name. Reading about it in the papers is not what they want as it excludes them from the process of government."

BUT MORE importantly, Mayer believes, are concerns that decisions are made before the council meets in public session.

"It has been reported that too many decisions are being made in advance of the issues being aired before this body. It is the intent of the law that deliberations be conducted openly. To quote, only in part, 'the people of this state and of this village do not yield their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them.'"

"We, the people, do not give our public servants the right to decide what is good for us to know and what is not good for us to know. We, the people, insist on remaining informed in order to retain control over the instruments we have created."

Mayer also criticizes what she calls the "steamroller effect."

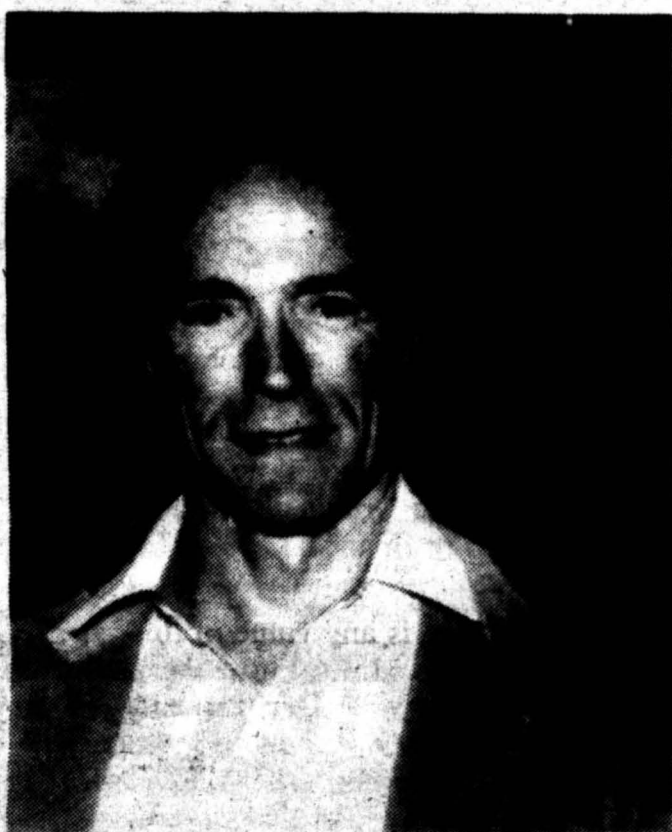

"It has been reported that there are many complaints regarding the steamroller effect by which the will of this administration is forced upon the people. The 'let's go for it' approach is felt by many to make deliberation impossible."

"That more time must be allowed for more caution in the consideration of matters of considerable importance to the community as a whole. And further, that the city's business to date is being conducted with little or no regard to proper rules of order."

Mayer's final point is that Eastwood's decisions to replace the planning commissioners and abolish the Business License and Code Review Board is "vindictiveness."

"There is also a complaint that there exists in recent past, present and future planned action a pervasive impression of vindictiveness. That Business License and Code Review Boards, planning commissions, and ordinances tell me that I can't do what I want to do so let's overthrow anybody or any commission, board or body that hampers me in any way."

"All commissions, boards and bodies are in existence by the will of the people for the purpose of aiding in the proper conduct of the people's business and necessarily places limits by law on the greed and self interest that, in varying degrees, is unfortunately inherent in all men."

CARMEL MAYOR Clint Eastwood defended his purge of the planning commission by saying the people asked overwhelmingly for a change in city government.

New commissioners to get orientation

THE NEW Carmel Planning Commissioners will get an introduction June 11 to their duties and projects they will be asked to vote on in future meetings.

The regular planning commission meeting scheduled at 4 p.m. Wednesday, June 11 in Carmel City Council Chambers has been changed to an orientation meeting for the six new members and a review for the one holdover from the prior commission, Ken White. The regular meeting has been rescheduled for Wednesday, June 18.

Newly appointed at the June 3 Carmel City Council meeting (see related story this issue) architects Olof Dahlstrand and Fred Keeble, realtor Carla Ramsey and Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook publisher Bill Brown, will join architect Ed Hicks and Monterey police officer Bruce Roberts in their first meeting as planning commissioners.

Hicks and Roberts were appointed by the city council May 6.

Planning Director Diane White said the meeting is intended as a workshop for the commission to go over procedures and duties and will serve as a study session on major items. Those include two use permits applications for ice cream parlors, one on Ocean Avenue and one on San Carlos Street, one for Sade's bar on Ocean Avenue, R-4 District zoning and pending specific plans for large properties such as the Countess Claudé de Kinnoull estate on 11th Avenue near Junipero and the Bennett property on Dolores Street and Second Avenue.

White said that no votes will be required by the commissioners during the informational meeting and it will be open to the public.

KEN WHITE, a planning commissioner for six months, is the only survivor of the purge undertaken by Mayor Clint Eastwood.

Parking issues highlight city council agenda

FOR A while it appeared that the Pine Inn proposal would not even proceed to the discussion stage.

Pine Inn co-owner Richard Gunner prepared a proposal that basically stated that he would pay $10,000 per space and he wants credit for his existing spaces so that Pine Inn would share even less in the cost.

A 1983 report indicated that the per-parking-spaces price tag would be more than $15,000 and the total cost of a 63-space facility is estimated at $957,000.

Using those numbers, the city would receive 31 spaces for about $500,000. The current 20-space, city-only facility would cost $685,000.

The former Pine Inn owners in September 1982 had projected that a 96-space parking facility would cost between $500,000 and $700,000. That plan was rejected by the past city council.

Gunner's $10,000 limit "is not in the best interests of the city," according to City Administrator Doug Schmitz.

In his staff report, Schmitz said the benefit to the city would be "negligible" if the council has to pay 75 percent of the costs.

But before the council meeting, Mayor Clint Eastwood and Schmitz negotiated with Pine Inn, pretty much telling the owners that the city would not go for the proposal as presented.

The council unanimously agreed and gave Pine Inn another month to make a counter-proposal. The parking facility and library annex proposals are expected to be presented to the council again July 1.

In a separate matter, the council has asked the planning commission to again review the proposed ordinance to loosen restrictions on ice cream parlors.

Eastwood and Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer had as one of their campaign themes a promise to allow ice cream parlors. Councilmembers James Wright and Helen Arnold also seemed willing to approve an ordinance.

A COUNCIL decision on whether to proceed with the proposed Harrison Memorial Library annex was delayed again Tuesday night while the city works with Pine Inn on a plan to develop a joint parking garage in conjunction with the annex. The annex as proposed would include a large children's department. Meanwhile, youngsters and their parents must be content with checking out the books at the main library. (Holly McFarland photo.)

HOWEVER, problems with seating arrangements and parking forced the council to unanimously delay action until the commission could review the issues again.

Wright pointed out that the ordinance as written would allow new restaurants to escape parking requirements if ice cream is sold. He also seemed intent on requiring new ice cream parlors to meet parking regulations.

Another point addressed by several of the council members referred to seating. The question is whether the ordinance should require that 60 percent of the floor area be dedicated for seating. Fischer and Laiolo appeared willing to drop the requirement to 50 percent.

Another suggestion from staff planner Brian Roseth is to place a flat minimum square footage seating requirement, such as 360 sq. ft. That way, larger spaces are not penalized by having to provide more seating, Roseth said.

Full-time rec director part of city's budget

By MICHAEL GARDNER

IN WHAT is expected to be the first step in a complete overhaul of operations at the Carmel Youth Center, the city council has under consideration a proposal to hire a full-time recreation director.

The proposal is included in the biennial municipal budget presented this week to the council and scheduled for more discussion June 19.

City Administrator Doug Schmitz again this year will stick to his format of preparing biennial (two-year) budgets.

Schmitz proposes not to increase city expenditures next year by maintaining a budget of $5.9 million for 1986-87. The proposed 1987-88 budget would increase to $6.6 million based on estimates for salary increases and additional municipal capital improvements projects.

Key points in the proposed budget for 1986-87 are:

- A plan to hire a full-time director to work through the Carmel Youth Center while the city and youth center negotiate a long-term agreement for recreational services.
- A proposal to grant $10,000 to help finance a study on the feasibility of a 1,500-seat auditorium at the south parking lot of Sunset Center. The Friends of Sunset Center is proposing the study.
- More than $1 million in four separate contingency funds: general fund, $308,181; workers' compensation, $200,000; benefit liability fund, $129,581 and self-insurance, $425,000.
- A $7,500 grant to the Carmel Business Association.
- Until final decisions are reached, no mention is made of expenditures for the proposed parking garage underneath the planned Harrison Memorial Library annex or for the proposed Sunset Center parking facility.
- The capital improvements project budget is decreased by $212,733 over expenditures in 1985-86.
- The budget for the legal department is cut by $20,552. The cuts reflect the decisions to drop the Spanish Bay lawsuit and termination of the Odello East court case. In addition, paralegal aid for the city attorney is eliminated.

• There is no budget for a proposed walkway on Scenic Road as part of phase two of the Carmel Beach Rehabilitation Project.

• Carmel will continue to enjoy a healthy police department, with its proposed $1.33 million budget and 31 employees.

• Tourists will continue to pay the bills. Of the $5.9 million in revenues, $2.43 million is generated by the 10 percent motel tax. Another $1.29 million will come to the city thanks to the sales tax.

• There is a $129,013 increase in the budget for staff salaries that reflects a 2 percent increase in employee pay. The 2 percent salary hike was negotiated as part of a three-year package that expires in 1987.

• The city will not receive income in 1986-87 from in-lieu fees — those charges to new businesses that can't meet parking requirements. The budget is projected at $376,100, which includes $34,307 in interest.

• Except for the recreation director, no new staff positions are proposed.

IF THE council allocates funding for a recreation director, it will mark the first time in this city's 70-year history for such a position.

The council for the past few years has offered winter, spring and summer programs operated under the supervision of a part-time director and staff.

Since its opening more than 35 years ago, the Carmel Youth Center has remained autonomous from the city. A lease for the property and building expires in 1989 and either must be renegotiated or the city will assume control of the facility.

But internal conflicts between the youth center board and a financial crisis has pressured the two entities into seeking more cooperative arrangements earlier than the 1989 date. A third party expected to be involved is the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

The recreation director position is one of the policy questions Schmitz identifies in what he calls the "issues and options" report.

Schmitz calls the $20,000 for a full-time director "phase one of a two-part effort to resuscitate that activity center. It is a Band-Aid approach."

The position is designed to help the facility remain open while at the same time serving as a starting point for negotiations between the youth center board and council. The board has chosen to close the center for the summer and save income derived from Mayor Clint Eastwood campaign paraphernalia sales to finance a fall program.

As Schmitz states in his report, "It provides an opportunity to put a full-time recreation director into the center under a contractual agreement with the Carmel Youth Center Board as the first step in initiating a comprehensive program for the youth of the greater Carmel area. This also precludes the closing of the center as of July 1."

BUT SCHMITZ points out that if his proposal is adopted, the youth center and school district will have to bear some staff costs.

"Additional staff to supervise the center during the absence of the director would have to be the responsibility of either the youth center or the Carmel Unified School District," Schmitz believes.

Schmitz also noted, "The proposed allocation for a director's salary does not provide additional funds for the repair and maintenance of the facility or for additional programming efforts."

"Both of those would have to remain the responsibility of the board for the forthcoming year until a long-term agreement could be consummated."

Frank Lynch resigns as CMS principal

FRANK LYNCH, principal of Carmel Middle School for the past five years, has resigned.

Lynch has accepted a position as principal of Petaluma High School north of San Francisco.

By press time, Supt. Bob Infelise had made no plans for a recommendation to the board of trustees for seeking a replacement.

It is a career advancement move for Lynch, who has been a familiar figure in the Carmel Unified School District for 15 years.

Lynch joined the Carmel district in 1973 after teaching at Sacred Heart High School in San Francisco. He first taught driver's education and then English at Carmel High School. He also coached football and track.

In 1980 Lynch took a hiatus from the district to serve as vice principal of North Monterey County High School.

A year later, Lynch returned as principal of Carmel Middle School, a post he has held for five years.

Lynch's last day will be June 30 and assumes his duties at Petaluma July 1.

Lynch said most of all he will miss the staff and parents in the Carmel district. "There's been real strong community support. Right now there's a boon. People really want to help."

NEW CARMEL High School Principal Marie Ishida sees her role as a "facilitator" between staff and students.

Ishida (pronounced Eshida with a short e) was named principal by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education during a special meeting Wednesday, May 28.

Ishida will officially resign from her current post as assistant principal of Santa Cruz High School June 30 and assume her duties in Carmel in mid-July following a three-week vacation in Japan.

"It's my general philosophy that I see my primary role as principal as that of a facilitator to ensure the best possible environment for students and staff," she explained.

"I truly feel that the most important and critical factor in a child's education is the teacher," Ishida continued. "As instructional leader of the school, it is my responsibility to make sure the contact between students and the staff is positive."

Ishida wants to meet with teachers, staff and community before she suggests any new programs and policies at the high school.

"I'd really like to get a chance to know staff, parents and the community and the expectations for the high school before establishing any particular priorities. I don't want to presume or assume anything," she said.

Ishida is a veteran teacher and administrator. After graduating from California State University, Long Beach she taught in Southern California for nine years. During that time she also served as a headmaster of a high school for two years.

Ishida took a sabbatical in 1979-80 to earn an administrative credential from San Jose State.

"I loved it up here so much that I decided I didn't want to go back if I could possibly help it," she laughed.

Ishida found the job at Santa Cruz High School and served as assistant principal there for six years before accepting the job in Carmel.

She replaces Joe Feldeisen, who resigned to resume his duties as vice principal of the high school.

Supt. Bob Infelise had nothing but praise for the selection of Ishida.

"The committee unanimously recommended her as their choice to be principal of Carmel High School. If I was making the decision all by myself I would have reached the same conclusion," Infelise said.

"I'm impressed with her management skills, but I'm most impressed with her relationships with people. Our visit to her campus showed she has excellent rapport with staff, students and parents."

Infelise sees a bright future ahead for Carmel High School under Ishida's leadership.

"This person has the ability to take Carmel High School wherever the community wants it to go," he said.

BEHIND THE LINES

BY MICHAEL GARDNER

'Clint: The first 100 days'

Did anyone besides the tourists happen to see a fat "Man With No Name" on the streets of Carmel last Friday?

He is Louie Anderson, the chubby comic familiar to those who can keep awake for Johnny Carson or subscribe to Showtime. Unconfirmed reports also have Louie in Sandra Locke's Rat Boy. (If you need to know Locke's connection to Carmel, I'll lend you 69 cents for a copy of the Globe.)

Louie is doing a pilot called Nightcap, a news show with a comedy angle, according to associate producer Drew Brown.

The Nightcap crew, naturally, is filming a segment on Carmel's mayor tentatively titled Clint Eastwood: The First 100 Days. Of course, who cares that Clint has been in office less than 60 days?

The half-hour program is designed to run in the 11 p.m. slot — probably to follow the real news shows that most independent stations air earlier than the network broadcasts.

Nightcap should be seen in Canada later this month and may line up American air time in the fall, the producers say.

'HOW FORTUNATE CARMEL'

No matter the outcome of the election and how you feel about the new council's policies, one must appreciate that at least Carmelites can vote in or out the people they want to make the rules.

A reminder of that comes from a newspaper editorial in the Daily Enterprise of Adirondack, N.Y., passed along by Dorothy Grimshaw. The paper serves the Lake Saranac area, which is under the control of the state rather than a local council or board of supervisors.

The opinion piece reports on how residents of Saranac Lake "are told to color their dwellings, in some instances, brown or green so as to blend in with the summer colors of the background."

"Municipalities are told to color their bridges brown...the possibility of spilling a drink or a flower pot into Lower Saranac Lake might be a good reason to deny him (an applicant) permission to convert his boathouse into a home."

But as the editorial points out, Saranac Lake residents have no such opportunity to change the policies even if they want to since

COMIC LOUIE Anderson dons the duds of the Man With No Name for a pilot cable television program partially filmed in Carmel last week. (Michael Gardner photo.)

TOURISTS POINT out one of the signs taking advantage of the new mayor's name. City officials charged with enforcing sign ordinances are pretty much looking the other way until they get some kind of policy guidance from the new council. (Michael Gardner photo.)

it is the state that hands down the regulations.

Thus, the appropriate headline, "How Fortunate Carmel."

THIS HOT SCOOP COULD MELT

I'm always asking, with little success I might add, for scoops. But, on Saturday, June 21 I can get all I want over at Devendorf Park.

That's when Greg Cellitti, Pam Mason and Harvey Hilburn will join with any city officials who want to show up, to dish out free ice cream cones.

The "Great Carmel Lick-In" grew out of last year's hassles with ice cream cones in Carmel, a controversy that played a large role in Clint's decision to seek office.

KEY DECISION EXPECTED

The new council by virtue of a 3-2 vote at its first meeting passed along word that it does not particularly favor going to court to stop development outside the city.

But a new test may come up as oral arguments have been scheduled for June 18 in the Mission Ranch suit.

Most people have forgotten, but while the city is negotiating a purchase of Mission Ranch, there's still a court suit over the development. The past council won, but Mission Ranch Corp. appealed. An early defendant, the board of supervisors, chose to drop out rather than side with Mission Ranch.

Perhaps the council has, by virtue of its non-decision May 6 when the Spanish Bay and Odello suits were dropped, chosen to keep its options open on Mission Ranch.

Meanwhile, Clint isn't talking about his personal negotiations with someone or some company about buying Mission Ranch.

AN OFFER HE BETTER REFUSE

Not all was seriousness during that recent Caltrans meeting over the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

During the audience discussion Georgina Swift complained that widening existing Highway 1 would put lanes "in our bedroom."

Not one to pass up a one-liner opportunity, Clint chirped in: "We don't want them there."

QUICK QUIPS

Paul Laub continues his killings in Clintville. Tacky as it may be, he plans to raise 20 grand for the mayor's youth fund through sales of T-shirts. Word is that Paul will start shipping the shirts off to San Francisco's Pier 39. A deal is in the works.

Speaking of tacky, the worst sign in Carmel remains up just half a block north of city hall. It's for a tongue sandwich, allegedly Clint's fave. Merchants slowly are capitalizing on the new lackadaisical attitude about business. Meanwhile, city staff looks the other way until they get some kind of formal guidance from the new policymakers.

Word is that Caltrans and CHP reps won't make their recommendations to Sacramento until after the board of supervisors has a public hearing. No date had been set by press time for that hearing.

Message to those anxiously awaiting a recommendation from Caltrans and the CHP on whether the Big Sur Marathon should continue: take it easy for a week.

There may be bathroom humor, but in Carmel there isn't anything funny about the lack of facilities. But miracle! That construction at Devendorf Park will produce restrooms by summer's end. No pun intended.

KIM JOINS THE SOAPS

Associated Press article out of Los Angeles has Carmel Valley's favorite aerobics teacher Kim Novak back in front of the cameras.

Soaps being what they are, little info is provided about who Kim will play, only to say that she will have a recurring role as a "mysterious woman" in Falcon Crest.

Kim, who starred in such fine movies as Vertigo, Picnic, Pal Joey, The Man With the Golden Arm and Of Human Bondage, will debut in the second episode of the new fall season.

PANETTA'S NEST EGG

Congressman Leon Panetta, the Democrat from Carmel Valley, is in the bottom one-third of a listing of the assets of California congressional representatives.

Now before your office takes up a collection plate, you might want to know that Panetta's assets have been listed at $218,003. I'll take it any day.

Anyway, even at that kind of salary the congressman is only about 15th on the list of some 45 California representatives.

California millionaire club members are headed by Democrat Pete Stark (Hayward) with $1.43 million, followed by Republican Robert Lagomarsino (Santa Barbara) with $1.36 million and Republican Ed Zschau (Los Altos) with $1.03 million.

Stark also heads the list of indebtedness, reporting $1.25 million in liabilities and is third among all U.S. Congressmen in outside income, listing $306,207.

Lagomarsino, by virtue of a $0 reported liabilities is the likely guess as the richest California congressman.

San Clemente dam timeline tops water board agenda

A REVIEW of the proposed San Clemente dam timeline, Carmel River Management Program budgets and awards for the best low water-using landscaping will be three of the agenda items on the June agenda at the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board meeting.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. — one-half hour earlier than usual — Monday, June 9 in the Monterey City Council Chambers.

The Army Corps of Engineers has notified the water district it may have to file an environmental impact statement, said Henrietta Stern, water district contract coordinator, a development that might change when the proposed dam is brought to a vote.

An EIS, Stern said, is similar to an EIR, except the district must select which alternatives to the proposed project are not feasible and analyze why they are not. Then, all feasible alternatives must be analyzed in depth.

The Army Corps of Engineers, Stern said, issues the permits to excavate land. The district was told when it filed for the permit for the dam that it might have to develop an EIS, a document Stern said the water district had understood from the Army Corps it did not have to file.

It might be possible to file a joint EIR/EIS, Stern said, thus saving the district time.

What the ramifications on the timing for bringing the dam to a vote will be, Stern said, won't be known until the Army engineers determine whether the district needs to file an EIS, and if it does, how much of the work already done on the EIR will be applicable.

"We're preparing an optimistic, pessimistic and realistic timeline for the board," Stern said.

The dam currently is scheduled to be voted on in November 1987.

In other items, the board will:

- Conduct the annual review of the 1986-87 General Fund and Carmel River Management Program. General fund revenues are expected to total $1 million in 1986-1987 with administrative costs at an estimated $675,000, leaving the remaining $325,000 for other projects.

California crime rate shows a downward trend

A four-year downward trend of reported crime rates leveled off last year with only a .6 percent increase, according to figures released recently by Attorney General John K. Van de Kamp. Total arrests increased .7 percent in 1985, resulting in an overall 2.9 percent increase in arrest rates since 1980. With the exception of 1982, arrests have increased each year since 1980.

The figures are contained in the attorney general's annual report, Crime and Delinquency in California 1985, which highlights crime and arrest statistics for last year.

The report shows that, of those adults arrested for felonies, 58.3 percent were convicted, compared with 57.2 percent in 1984. The five-year increase in convictions climbed from 55.8 percent in 1980.

"What we are seeing is a slight rise in the crime rate, along with an increase in convictions," Van de Kamp said. "The increase in arrests and convictions points to more effective law enforcement and prosecution efforts."

"We also saw the rate of new juvenile referrals to probation departments increase by 6.8 percent last year," Van de Kamp added. "This jump follows a 16.7 percent decrease from 1980 to 1984."

The report also contains the following statistics:

Crimes — The California Crime Index rate, which counts willful homicide, forcible rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, and motor vehicle theft, decreased 19.5 percent from 1980-1985.

Of the 828,461 California Index crimes reported in 1985,

- 24.4 percent were violent crimes (202,066).
- 75.6 percent were property crimes (626,395).

This compares to 24 percent and 76 percent in 1984.

Arrests — Between 1980 and 1985, adult arrest rates rose 6.5 percent while juvenile arrest rates dropped 12.9 percent. In 1985, adult arrests increased only .1 percent while juvenile arrest rates jumped 4.7 percent. Of the 1,716,040 arrests reported,

- adult arrests (1,485,079) accounted for 86.5 percent.
- juvenile arrests (230,961) accounted for 13.5 percent.
- felony arrests accounted for 24.1 percent (413,673).
- misdemeanor arrests accounted for 74.4 percent (1,276,594).
- status offense arrests accounted for 1.5 percent (25,773).

Juveniles — In 1985, of the 120,468 new juvenile referrals disposed of by probation departments,

- 50.7 percent (61,022) of the cases were closed or transferred to other agencies.
- 14.7 percent (17,654) of the cases were placed on informal probation.
- in 34.7 percent of the cases (41,792), petitions were filed in juvenile courts.
- .3 percent (413) of the juveniles appearing in juvenile court were committed to the California Youth Authority.

Adult Felony Arrest Dispositions — In 1985, those convicted were sentenced as follows:

- 10.6 percent were placed on probation.
- 33.3 percent were given jail sentences and probation.
- 5.2 percent were sentenced to jail.
- 9.3 percent were sentenced to state institutions (prison, California Youth Authority, and California Rehabilitation Center).

Potrero Canyon School: Education with a view

INSIDE, children work on computers, but if they looked out the window they could see deer grazing in the schoolyard.

Such is the setting for Potrero Canyon School, a private facility for preschoolers and kindergartners off Rancho San Carlos Road in Carmel Valley.

The school is winding up another year this month and will go into a summer hiatus while owners Pat and Suzanne Faverty operate their second venture, an activities program called Camp Carmel.

Ironically, the Favertys had no intentions of opening a preschool when they first moved to the Carmel area about four years ago.

What they had in mind was a private junior high, which would follow their previous experiences at Ojai Valley School, a boarding school for grades three through eight. Suzanne was a teacher and Pat taught and served as headmaster.

But the timing being what it was, Pat and Suzanne arrived here just when the former operators of Potrero Canyon School had decided to sell.

The Favertys decided to leap at the opportunity.

Potrero Canyon School offers three different programs as part of its curriculum.

For the two-year-olds there are a lot of art and movement activities, Mrs. Faverty explained. "The children come to learn social skills and enjoy being with a group their own age," she said.

The three- to four-year-old group is the largest at the school, with 32 children and four teachers. Mrs. Faverty says the program employs a lot of "manipulative" materials because at that age children learn best through hands-on experiences.

One of the special activities for this age group is the sound center, Mrs. Faverty said. The children also learn a letter a week and for those five days most of the programs revolve around the letter.

For example, if the letter is "T" the students will make tacos in cooking class. If it is "N," the nature study will focus on nests, she said.

Potrero Canyon School also offers a traditional kindergarten program, including a lot of science and art.

The art program often will focus on a specific medium or artist. For example, one day the students learned about Pablo Picasso and then they spent their art time drawing in Picasso's style.

Kindergartners also learn basic computer operation.

Tuition at Potrero Canyon School is $225 monthly for kindergarten. The monthly tuition for other ages is $130 for twice a week, $158 for three days a week, and $220 for five days a week.

Planners loosen ice cream parlor restrictions

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission prepared ice cream with amendments Wednesday, May 28 for the Carmel City Council, but the beach walkway environmental impact report and applications for two ice cream parlors were left in the hands of six newly-appointed commissioners.

It was the last planning commission meeting before the Carmel City Council decided the fate of its members, a situation that did not escape comment by commission Chairwoman Sandy Swain or City Councilwoman Helen Arnold, who was in attendance at the meeting.

Swain's comments were made intermittently near the end of the meeting.

"I believe these seats will be warmed by someone else next time," she said at one point, and later "I regret we won't be here anymore."

Arnold told the commission that she was, "disturbed about what is going on. I'm grateful to you and feel you have done a good job of voting your conscience."

"Thank you for those kind words. They have been the first in a long time," Swain responded.

Three absent members in the commission's meeting left the seven-member panel with a quorum of four, but not enough votes to grant use permits. A use permit gives permission for a location to be used as a particular type of business and requires five affirmative votes. That meant applications by Carol Montana and William Lawson for ice cream parlors downtown were continued until the next meeting.

Though the beach walkway EIR was not a public hearing item, the commission allowed interested citizens to comment on the document. The staff was directed to write up those comments, along with concerns of the commissioners, and bring the EIR back later in June.

One of the last actions of the commissioners was to send to the city council a proposed ordinance easing use permit restrictions on "frozen dessert" eating places. The ordinance specifically allows the sale of ice cream cones, considered to be an uncovered takeout food. Uncovered takeout food is against the Carmel city code.

But the commission added two conditions to the ordinance. One that the business would have to be responsible for trash maintenance in the surrounding area and another that orders could only be taken while customers are seated.

The unamended ordinance was prepared by the Carmel Planning Department staff after the city council on May 6 approved a planning commission resolution requesting that the code affecting ice cream parlors be changed. The commission requested the change, the resolution stated, because provisions in the current law makes it difficult to approve ice cream parlors.

The ordinance was considered by the city council at its June 3 meeting. (See related story.) Though the planning commission reviewed and prepared the ordinance, the city council is the only entity that can make it law.

Last year, a prohibition against the sale of ice cream cones included in an ice cream parlor use permit application brought Carmel national attention in the news media. It became an issue during the recent campaign.

The new resolution creates a sub-category of the ordinance on eating places, Planning Director Diane White told the commissioners. The sub-category establishes criteria for businesses that primarily sell frozen desserts, made from ice cream, frozen yogurt, freezes, ices, gelato and frozen custard.

The sub-category ordinance states that such a business cannot be primarily drive-in, walk-up or a "formula food" establishment. It requires that the business be at least 600 sq. ft. and 60 percent of that must be devoted to seating during business hours. The business must be conducted to encourage consumption of the products on the premises.

Ice cream cones are singled out as a permitted uncovered takeout food. The ordinance reads "that products sold for consumption off the premises other than cones" must be placed in covered containers.

The ordinance also states that counter-style service and any lines created by that service must be contained on the business premises.

Though the ordinance specifies that there be "an adequate area on and off the site for the storage of trash and garbage, so that the area can be cleaned without creating a public nuisance on the public right-of-way," litter created by ice cream parlors became the primary concern of the commission.

The commission voted unanimously to strengthen that section and required that the business be responsible for clean up of the surrounding area.

Mark Risley, manager of Dick Bruhn clothing store on the corner of San Carlos Street and Ocean Avenue, asked the commission to leave the current law intact and not pass the new code. Risley told the commission that it was their experience, when Swensen's was operating approximately a half a block from Bruhn, that a "tremendous amount of trash was generated by this type of establishment (ice cream parlors)."

"If the permit is changed it should also have a requirement that the business (which generates that litter) have to maintain" the area outside other stores also, Risley added.

Though the former owner of Swensen's, William Lawson, told the commission his business had not generated litter, the commission voted to add the condition to the ordinance after some discussion.

Another addition was suggested by Commissioner Arthur Mertens.

"Two or three years ago we attached a condition on a use permit for a restaurant serving gelato that no orders could be taken at the counter. Now that's encouragement," he said.

"I'm wholeheartedly in favor of an ice cream parlor, not only to recent applications but the old creamery, I think is missed. I would like to see them come back to Ocean Avenue and Carmel but I think we should encourage them not to start a walkout (type of restaurant)."

"That could be tying the owner's hands to the point it would be difficult for them to make a living," Commissioner Ken White responded.

However, Merten's motion that "all orders be taken from patrons while seated at a table or counters" be added to the ordinance was approved along with the provision for maintenance of the surrounding area.

ADEQUACY OF the final EIR on the Carmel Beach Restoration Phase II found some dispute among commissioners and members of the audience. The plan includes accessways to the beach along the bluff and a walkway and guard rails along Scenic Road that would eliminate 77 parking spaces.

The planning commission must rule on whether the EIR has sufficiently addressed all the environmental impacts of the project before it can be forwarded to the city council. Prior to the item coming under the scrutiny of the commissioners, Staff Planner Brian Roseth cautioned them that they would only be considering whether the EIR was adequate and not voting to approve the project.

Though the proposed restrooms on the beach were commented on, the elimination of parking spaces provoked the most discussion.

Cava started by saying he did not believe the EIR "correctly identified the impact" of the loss of the parking spaces.

A member of the audience and resident on Scenic Road, identified only as Mr. Galloway, told the commission he agreed with Cava and there was a "lack of consideration" for the parking issue in the EIR.

Galloway said that the effect on "downtown would be horrible" and that "26 percent of the people who go to the beach park on Scenic."

He added that the project was a "confiscation of property rights" and that the EIR did not take into consideration the effect the project would have on property owners.

Former mayor and husband of Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, Barney Laiolo, told the commission that they should "leave nature as it is" and save a considerable amount of money.

The proposed restrooms off of 13th Avenue came under fire from Elizabeth Stimpson, another Scenic Road resident, who told the commission that the restrooms would attract people who sleep on the beach, something that is already a problem. The restrooms should be around Eighth Street, she said, where the majority of people are.

Another concern about the EIR came from Carmel resident Kaye Scott, who told the commission that it omitted the impact on the

Court upholds county on Carmel Valley Ranch case

By MICHAEL GARDNER

IRONICALLY, the time has come when the Monterey County Board of Supervisors is so environmentally oriented these days that it even goes to court to protect areas from overdevelopment.

The latest case in point is Carmel Valley Ranch, the exception to the master plan that has been allowed to develop even though there has been a moratorium on new lots of record since 1978.

It was in 1977 that a former board of supervisors pushed through a specific plan for Carmel Valley Ranch that insured that Landmark Land Development Co. would not have to abide by any restrictions imposed by the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Eventually the master plan was tossed out by the courts as being inadequate, but because of its specific plan the 400-residential unit and 100-room hotel Carmel Valley Ranch was exempt from the building moratorium imposed by Superior Court Judge Richard Silver.

The ranch developed in phases, the last being a proposal for 89 units in "Oak Place," a project in the hills overlooking the golf course.

But Carmel Valley Ranch last year claimed that since the project did not build out to capacity in the flatlands then permission should be granted to develop 132 units at Oak Place. The 132 homes would bring total development to the previously-approved 400.

The county refused, saying that the development of 132 units is too dense for the Oak Place area and that building should not be allowed on more than a 30 percent slope.

And just last week, the court upheld the county — the same entity that was on the pro-development and losing end of court cases involving the Carmel Valley Master Plan, Mission Ranch and Odello East.

In his decision released May 30, Superior Court Judge John Phillips ruled that Carmel Valley Ranch had produced "no evidence"

Southern corridor for visitors from Carmel Valley and the affected vistas from the top of the bluff.

Scott's involvement, interest and "many hours" spent on the EIR process was praised by Swain. She told the commissioners Scott had prepared an extensive report on the project.

Arnold expressed concern to the commission that the project "could drag on for a long, long time" and she was "distressed because of the delayed accessways that we need now."

Arnold requested that the accessway portion of the EIR be forwarded to the council as soon as possible.

Roseth told the commission that he may not be "fully informed," but that he understood that the city had authorization to proceed with the accessways.

The commission voted to have the staff put a report together with the comments heard at the meeting and have the EIR returned to the commission. Roseth said later it probably would not be until the June 25 meeting.

to require supervisors to approve the increased density at Oak Place.

Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman called the decision a "major victory for good land use planning."

Strasser Kauffman added that if she had her druthers she would prefer to review all of Oak Place, but that law precludes a second chance to stop or restrict that previous approval by former supervisors.

Carmel Valley Ranch attorney Myron

"Doc" Etienne indicated that it would be a few days before a decision is made whether to appeal.

"We're analyzing the decision and I don't know what we're going to do. It's an unfortunate result," Etienne said.

"The fact is that the ranch has kept its commitments with the county. They (the ranch developers) constructed a very expensive sewage treatment system and the Robinson Canyon interchange designed to serve 400 units."

Supervisors to hear hotel and condo proposals

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors will review two key development proposals when it meets Tuesday, June 10 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

At 10 a.m. supervisors will consider an appeal filed by the developers of the proposed Carmel Rancho Inn on Rio Road at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

The developers, one of whom is Mel Kline of Carmel, want to build a 58-room hotel on the vacant lot across from the Crossroads Shopping Center.

Zoning Administrator Dale Ellis had rejected the application in May.

In another matter, supervisors at 2:45 p.m. will review a planning commission recommendation to trim the allowable density for the Mahroom condominium project in High Meadow.

Commissioners recommend that the number of allowable units be cut from 36 to 18 on the approximately two-acre parcel near Outlook Drive, southeast of the intersection of Highway 1 and Carpenter Road.

CARMEL VOICE

BY SAM SALERNO

Shades of Vegas

THAT WAS quite a party thrown for Mayor Clint Eastwood and campaign workers at the Pine Inn the other night.

Clyde Sturges was behind it all and invited Carmel "biggies" to the shindig. The Conte Four provided the music and Pat DuVal gave a couple of solo vocal performances to the delight of everyone. The food and libations were great. Among those present were the Fischers, the Laiolos, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Sturges and daughter, the Jack Gibsons, Bruna Odello, Sue Hutchinson, and others too numerous to mention.

Following the Pine Inn bash, the La Playa was the scene of the Saks Fifth Avenue bingwigs to play host to Mr. Eastwood in a "get-acquainted" session to help usher in their new store in the Carmel Plaza. All the top executives from around the nation were on hand to shake Clint's hand and say they were happy to be part of Carmel. Saks is a great addition to the Plaza.

During the La Playa party, we had an opportunity to speak to Clint and naturally the proud papa talked about son Kyle, who graduated that day from Robert Louis Stevenson School at Pebble Beach. He informed me that Kyle has been accepted to University of Southern California and will follow in his dad's footsteps learning all the facets of the movie business and at the same time get his college degree. Southern Cal is famous for its cinema courses and Kyle will be joining the ranks of other SC alums including a graduate of my alma mater, Belmont High, Richard Crenna.

Crenna, incidentally, was a regular during the Clint Eastwood Celebrity Tennis Tournaments at the Beach and Tennis Club. At school, he used to delight in telling tales about his Italian grandma who raised him. Others from Belmont High who made the big time were Debra Paget, Myra Corday, Jack Webb, Mort Sahl, and Johnny Bernadino (former major league ball player) now on General Hospital.

CONGRATULATIONS

To Dr. & Mrs. Brad Carl on the arrival of a baby girl. Mama and baby are doing well.

HARD WORK PAYS OFF

We have heard through another broadcaster that Roger Powers has sold his interest in KOCN radio for something like a million dollars. But there is a catch we hear...the liabilities exceed more than $600,000! Still not a bad piece of change for a little FMR in Pacific Grove and for a guy who has worked very hard since he left KIDD a few years back to join Jack Hamilton as co-owners of KOCN. The station was formerly owned by filmmaker Jack Tobin of Fire Island.

LOCAL BOYS MAKES GOOD

Howard Portnoy of Carmel, a filmmaker, agent, and former disc jockey at KRML in the early '70s may have a best seller on his hands in the form of All the Fathers, a the story of the Fein family...a chilling true story of an immigrant Jewish family whose history reads like the dark side of the American dream. In 1963 Mark Fein, heir to the Fein family fortune, murdered his bookie over a $20,000 bet he could easily have paid. The crime and ensuing trial made front-page news for months.

What led up to this tragedy is one of the most compelling and chilling family sagas written in a long time. It is the story of the American dream gone sour, of a family that destroys itself in its quest for money and power; it is a story of survival, of corruption, of obsession, ultimately of murder and punishment and shattered lives. Look for it soon...it's a thriller!

LOCAL ARTIST

Jack Wall, Carmel artist who specializes in painting birds, just concluded two shows...one on Cannery Row and one in Los Altos. His works may be seen at the Wildlife & Nature Gallery on Cannery Row. This past weekend he journeyed to Pleasant Hill for another art show, displaying 20 pieces of his works. Next stops, Concord, Walnut Creek and Orinda Village. Busy boy, eh?

BIRDS OF A DIFFERENT NATURE

Here's one for Golf Digest or any other golf publication. This fete may never be duplicated. In a recent golf match at Ranch Canada, the foursome of Dee Reding, Carol Reding, John Nandy, and this reporter, garnered 24 one-putt greens and one "no-putt" green during an 18-hole stretch. Never in all the games played both professionally and from an amateur standpoint have we seen such awesome putting on greens that aren't noted for their speed or consistency. Dee had nine one-putts, Nandy nine, Salerno five, Carol four one-putts and one "no-putt" green. Who won the money? Dee, of course, as he usually does.

Speaking of golf, was nice to see Bobby Clampett earn a good check. It's been a tough year for the Carmel product on the PGA tour since he changed his swing. He tied the course record at Congressional at Bethesda, Md. in the Kemper Open with an 8-under-par 64 but couldn't sustain the tempo and finished with a 2-under-par 286, worth $6,275, his best check in more than a year. Bob Gilder, who represents the Carmel Valley Ranch, has done Clampett, played better, with a 280 score, worth $15,583. On another happy note, we understand that Clampett will be a papa soon...this word from Marcie Hyman.

Enough is enough!

Red letters days

THERE WERE two parties Friday, both involving red letter days: Mayor Clint Eastwood's birthday and the opening of Carmel's newest — and largest — store, Saks Fifth Avenue.

As it turned out Eastwood was involved in both of them, first at the party for Clint's campaign volunteers at the Pine Inn hosted by Clyde Sturges; the mayor was presented with a cake (with one candle) while Pat "The Singing Sheriff" DuVal led everyone in singing "Happy Birthday" for Eastwood's 56th (his birthday was actually Saturday, but who's counting?).

Then it was off to La Playa Hotel for a cocktail party with all the bigwigs from Saks Fifth Avenue, here in town from the Big Apple to open the new branch at Carmel Plaza.

Of course most of the New Yorkers wanted their picture taken with Hizzoner, "It's for my son," they all kept saying with big grins. The Saks people presented Clint with a huge bag full of Saks goodies, including a bright red Saks sweatshirt.

After chatting and posing for a while Clint scooted off into the night with a hearty "Viva La Saks!"

Coordinators on the committee are J. Daniel Tibbits of Dean Witter Reynolds, Monterey, and McKenzie Moss, president of Monterey County Bank.

Under the leadership of these businessmen, a committee of 35 executives will call on their associates June 9-30 to enlist the support of the business community on behalf of Hospice.

The goal for the campaign, according to Sparolini, is 200 contacts and $24,000 to be added to the Hospice Patient Care Fund and used to fund Hospice care for those whose resources have been depleted.

SYMPHONY GUILD ENDS 30th YEAR WITH LUNCHEON

The Monterey County Symphony Guild ended its 30th year with an annual luncheon meeting May 29 at the Monterey Plaza Hotel, with Ann Benson, nationally known financial consultant, as the featured speaker. New officers were also elected for the 1986-1987 season.

Mrs. John A. Andrews, Jr., president, presented a check for $14,000 to William Doolittle, representing the Monterey County Symphony Association. This brings the year's total to $45,000 from all the benefits.

The new slate of officers elected was Mrs. Andrews, continuing as president, three vice-presidents: Mrs. Albert Taylor, Mrs. Robert McFarren and Mrs. Gordon Stinson; treasurer, Mrs. Kenneth DeMent; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Hale Giffin; recording secretary, Mrs. Edward McWilliams, and corresponding secretary, Mrs. Arvid Croonquist.

Those elected to the symphony guild board were Dr. Dorothy P. Danno, Mrs. J. J. Wick and Mrs. Walter Freitas.

Mrs. Turner Croonquist was luncheon chairman; Mrs. Frederick Henderson was in charge of decorations.

Clark E. Suttle, music director and conductor of the Monterey County Symphony, was complimented for the love and high regard he had earned in the community in his first year.

BAHA'IS OF MONTEREY BAY CELEBRATE UNITY DAY

The Baha'is of the Monterey Bay area will join Baha'is in over 7,200 localities around the U. S. in celebration of Race Unity Day. A picnic for the public will be held at Toro Park on June 8 at 11 a.m. There will be games, songs and refreshments. Families are encouraged to bring their own picnic lunch.

Events promoting racial harmony and understanding have been held on the second Sunday of June by U. S. Baha'is since the inauguration of Race Unity Day in 1957 by their national governing body.

The purpose of this day is to focus attention on what Baha'is believe is the most challenging issue confronting the American community—racial prejudice. In addition, this year the international governing body of the Baha'is of the world released "The Promise of World Peace," a 16-page document addressed to the peoples of the world outlining the barriers preventing humanity from achieving a lasting peace. This statement cites racism as one of the obstacles to the achievement of peace and prejudice, war and exploitation as expressions of immature stages in man's history.

The Baha'i faith is an independent world religion founded in 1844 in Persia (Iran) which now has over four million followers world-wide.

BUSINESS BEAT BY NANCY HILLS

Please stop

PULL UP a chair, sit down and pour yourself a cup-of-whatever. I want to have a little neighborly chat.

Let's talk about how people view us — I mean here in Carmel, because I'm a resident -- and how the way we view ourselves affects others.

Let's talk about broken promises and overdoing things a bit. I seem to remember a lot of talk in the business community about how we don't want to commercialize Carmel. But maybe some things are just too hard to resist.

Take the unauthorized — shall I say — "merchandising" of our current mayor. If you don't know what I'm talking about, just take a walk around town. You'll see his name and face everywhere. You might even see his signature on a few interesting items. (Though, in my opinion, anyone who believes Clint Eastwood sits around signing ashtrays and stuff like that all day needs professional help.)

In some places, you might even think Carmel has changed its name. There's no accounting for taste. Or lack of it.

During an election campaign, a certain amount of enthusiasm and go-for-it attitude can be attributed to support. Support, I'm sure, any candidate would be pleased to have. Of course, all the money going to the Carmel Youth Center is a wonderful gesture.

However, after a while it gets to be like celebrating a birthday every day for two months straight. One's motives become a little suspect after awhile. Whether they deserve to be or not.

How people view the mayor and election in this city — not to mention Carmel — will depend a great deal on how the city conducts and views itself. If the mayor is displayed like a commodity by his own constituents, he becomes a commodity to others.

Of course there's the argument that celebrities have to expect that and are basically asking for it when they enter into the limelight. Maybe so. Rude customers and shoplifters are a part of retail business. But, I'll bet merchants wouldn't find it amusing if I thought that means I have a license to steal or a mandate to kick the salesclerk.

Besides, folks, come on. I know he's cute, but really, having Clint Eastwood staring at me everywhere I go — even if it's only from a lousy T-shirt — is beginning to make me nervous.

Turn off pilots for safety

Turning off gas furnace pilot lights from May to November could turn on energy and money savings for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. customers, according to Joe Cowan, manager in the utility's Monterey District.

Every year, more than half of PG&E's residential gas heating customers take advantage of this easy way to reduce home energy costs, Cowan said.

In most areas, homes are comfortable without use of gas furnaces during all or most of this period, but a burning pilot adds to the monthly bill.

Most furnaces have a metal plate or sticker with instructions for turning off and relighting pilot lights. The instructions should be followed exactly, he said. The instructions are usually located near the main furnace controls.

Owners of newer furnaces with electronic ignition systems are already getting these savings since there are no pilot lights in their furnaces.

"It only takes a minute to turn off the pilot light and just a few more to relight it in the fall," said Cowan. "Considering the savings, it's really worth the effort."

In most of PG&E's service area, the amount of gas that a residential customer is entitled to at the lowest rate drops depending on when individual meters are read in the period between April 16 and May 15, he said. The summer allowance in these areas is designed to cover water heating only, so gas used to keep a furnace pilot light burning will likely be paid for at higher rates.

Information on pilot light turn off and relighting is available from local PG&E office, Cowan said.

Bus passes for youths

Monterey-Salinas Transit announced that a special bus pass for youths ages 18 and under will be available for the summer.

The 1986 Youth Summer-Pass will be good for unlimited travel on all MST buses for all fare zones from June 1 through Labor Day. The Youth SummerPass will cost $30. This represents a discount of $111 over the regular price for three months of all zone bus passes.

According to MST General Manager Frank J. Lichtanski, the Youth SummerPass for the 1986 summer season is back by popular demand. The transit system received a very favorable response to last summer's discounted Youth SummerPass. Over 800 passes were sold last summer.

The 1986 Youth Summer-Passes go on sale on May 25 and will remain on sale until Aug. 10 at these locations:

Carmel: Monterey Savings, Sixth and San Carlos; Great Western Savings, Dolores and Seventh Street; Monterey: Monterey Bible Bookstore, 487 Alvarado; Valley National Bank, 35 Bonifacio; Monterey Peninsula College, Student Activities office.

Youth pass holders may be requested to furnish proof of age at time of boarding. Questions on the Youth SummerPass program should be directed to Monterey-Salinas Transit by calling 899-2555 or 424-7695. Telephone information is available from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

THEATRE TIMBERS TAKEN

Lumber and other useful property has been stolen from the Forest Theatre during the winter months, and it will be necessary for the directors of this year's productions to duplicate the materials taken unless they are returned immediately. Marshal Englund has been detailed to keep his eye on the theatre reservation, and suggests that it will be best for chilly individuals to obtain their firewood from regular dealers from now on.

We became acquainted with actual newspaper work, and both its excitement and monotony were witnessed by the students.

Another important result of publishing the paper is that we get a great deal of valuable experience. We have become conversant with the problems which face our town and have had the experience of considering remedies for them.

The students sincerely hope that the readers will find this a well published product as to news, editorial comment and general material.

FIRST UNIT OF CARMEL RANCHO SHOPPING CENTER OPENS

This morning the first unit of Carmel Rancho Shopping Center opened for business. Situated at the intersection of Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, the first group of buildings contains a Safeway Store, Carmel Rancho Pharmacy and a Union Oil service station. In the near future a hardware and patio supply store will open in another building in the first unit.

When completed, Carmel Rancho Shopping Center will present a park-like appearance, according to the plans for the development. The first cluster of buildings is constructed around a patio centered by a lawn. Plants in raised beds, walled with native Carmel rock, are a feature of the landscaping.

TRAFFIC, USAGE INCREASE CITED AT SUNSET THEATRE

The Carmel Planning Commission took a hard look at a land use committee report on the proposed Sunset Center Theatre, and decided to reconsider their concept approval in light of traffic and other problems that might be created by adding an auditorium.

The land use committee report recommended an Environmental Impact Report be prepared on the project, but otherwise found the auditorium — either 800- or 1200-seat capacity — to be compatible with zoning requirements at the Sunset Cultural Center.

PARENTS RALLY TO PRESERVE NEIGHBORHOOD SCHOOLS

A determined group of Carmel parents is forming a committee to preserve neighborhood schools.

Faced with declining enrollment and funding reductions, the Carmel United School District is considering the possible closing of one or more schools.

The Advisory Committee on School Facilities has been studying the district's plight for several months, and has held a series of neighborhood meetings to solicit comment from parents.

A study of enrollment by the advisory committee predicts that the number of students in the district will decrease to only 1,723 by 1985-86, compared with 3,148 in the 1974-75 school year.

The lowered birth rate, high cost of housing in the Carmel area, and the replacement of families with children by older, childless couples are the primary reasons for the declining enrollment.

Students need hosts

Jochen has a pet "Streifenhoernchen." Kenneth is learning to foxtrot and tango. King jogs in the winter and swims in the summer. Giovanni enjoys movies, discos and pizza. Andrea hopes to enter the Naval Academy someday. Maria would like to study history or art.

These teenagers, all English-speaking with varied interests, hail from many different countries — Germany, Hong Kong, France and Italy — yet have a common goal: They are planning to come to the U.S. this fall to take part in the Academic Year in America program sponsored by the American Institute For Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation, a non-profit organization founded in 1967.

And all are in need of host families.

Each year the foundation places hundreds of students from Europe and Asia with American families. The teenagers attend the local high school for all or part of the academic year. They become an integral member of their new family, taking their meals with their hosts, participating in holiday celebrations, birthday parties and outings.

Host families select a student by reviewing a "picture profile" of the exchange visitor's interests, hobbies, skills and country of origin. All students are screened by the foundation and are covered by medical insurance.

If you and your family are interested in learning foreign language skills, experiencing a foreign culture through the eyes of a teenager and helping to "Share America with the World," you'll want to get to know Jochen, Kenneth, King, Giovanni or Andrea.

For full details on how you can host a student, write: American Institute For Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation, Dept. P-24, 100 Greenwich Ave., Greenwich, Conn. 06830 or 3661 Buchanan St., San Francisco, CA 94123 or call (800) 243-4567.

Jochen promises to leave his Streifenhoernchen — a kind of squirrel with a bushy tail — back home in Munster, Germany.

IS THIS A SURPRISE

Whoops. Better late than never, I guess. It's come to my attention I never wrote up that Big Sur Village & River Inn Resort on Highway 1 in Big Sur has been sold to Skyrise Corp.

Things are still getting settled at the inn and Big Sur Village so Philip Becker, president of Skyrise, wants to wait a while before he reveals their plans for the establishment.

However, a press release from the San Diego headquarters of the corporation states that Skyrise is "a California corporation engaged in international hotel/motel and restaurant development in China, Germany and Spain." The release goes on to explain that plans for "an extensive refurbishing program designed to further enhance the natural beauty of this unique motel, restaurant, lounge and shopping complex" have been announced. (Remember, you heard it hear last.)

According to the press release, "that while these improvements will add considerable comfort and convenience to the facilities they will in no way alter the rustic beauty and harmonious blend with nature that now exists."

SURE ENOUGH

Remember last week (I certainly hope so) in this column I wrote that there might, could possibly be, changes with PhotoArt in Paul Laub's Paradise Building on the corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street.

It changed all right — into nothing. Kaput. Finished. A memory outlined on the tile floor.

Strictly rumor now, because former owner Marty Fox has not deigned to return my phone calls, it appears that he was not able to sell the place. Whether it was because no one wanted to (or could) meet landlord Laub's terms — he wanted to put the processing equipment downstairs — or what I don't know.

(What I do know is that Mr. Fox knows how to use a telephone. I know that because when he wanted a special article in the paper about his business he had absolutely no trouble figuring out how to handle a phone.)

Laub has replaced the film developing store with — now wait, cover your eyes and guess first — T-shirts and related items. What's next for the space we will all be breathlessly waiting to see.

NEW GALLERY OWNERS

If you go down Dolores Street looking for Galleria de Badik near the corner of Fifth Avenue, look instead for the Saar-Jarvis Art Gallery.

No new sign yet, but the new owners are installed and busy making it their own. Artist Eleanore Badik and partner E. P. Wayne purchased the gallery from artists Dorothy Saar and Robert Jarvis. Both artists who will continue to show at Galleria de Badik.

Wayne said he and Badik moved here from the San Francisco Bay area after a year's worth of looking for a gallery around Carmel. She had managed a gallery for 10 years and he is retired from business consulting.

When I got there Wayne was busy transforming a side room in the gallery into a studio for Badik to work in, so it will be a working artist's studio as well as a showcase for her impressionistic artwork in pastels, oils and prints.

Other artists will show in the gallery, Wayne said, primarily other impressionists and they will continue to carry the sculptures of Lou Rankin.

ON HER OWN

Gail Palumbo was the manager of Handworks on Dolores Street for about two and a half years, but the time has come for her to try out her own wings.

Palumbo has purchased the Craft House on the corner of Sixth Avenue and Dolores Street and it is now in the process of being transformed into her own shop, which she is simply calling Palumbo. She hopes to be open on July 1.

The shop, she said, will carry "art crafted for the home, business, offices, gifts. I'll be representing artists on the peninsula and throughout the United States."

The works will range from "functional ceramics for the table to one-of-a-kind decorative art works" and will be in the mediums of fiber, metal, handmade paper art and fabric.

The shop and works will be "contemporary — traditional crafts represented in contemporary design," Palumbo explained.

"I think the thing I'm really excited about is representing the local artists here on the peninsula. The people who come to Carmel ask for art representatives of the people living here and this is going to provide the opportunity for those artists to show their works," she said.

THE LEFT BANK LEFT

When last I spoke with Kathleen Cardinali, owner of the Left Bank cafe, she still did not have a place to transfer her business to. After 11 years in the same location, Cardinali was evicted from the Carmel Plaza effective June 1.

"I don't know what is going to happen," she said, adding that she is putting the restaurant's equipment in storage.

Cardinali is running into one of those problems many other businesses run into transferring locations in Carmel. Finding a place that uses as much water as a restaurant is tough. According to city code, a business moving into a space cannot use more water than the previous business in that location.

Cardinali and the Plaza are currently involved in a lawsuit over the whole thing and there is a don't-talk-about-it order imposed on the participants.

LEARN HOW

Galleries are the biggies this week.

Mission Art Gallery should open this week, according to owner/artist/teacher Doney Pavick. Pavick is opening the combination studio, gallery and painting classes with her daughter, artist Diana Knight.

The gallery is on Mission Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues in the courtyard next to the Clam Box and where Holiday Hutch is located. It is in part of the building formerly used by 20th Century Master's.

Pavick is not only going to be painting in the studio, she will offer oil painting classes on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday — for beginners as well as more advanced students.

This won't be her first time teaching, Pavick said. She has taught in the adult school in Salinas and also taught art as therapy in Seattle.

Though this is her first gallery, Pavick said she has studied art both privately and in the classroom from Seattle to Texas to Chile. She moved to the peninsula in 1963.

Her daughter has a degree in art from the University of California at Santa Barbara, she said.

Pavick said she does "mostly oils" and is working on a new style she calls "reflected light — which probably would be classified as impressionistic." Diana does mainly impressionistic work, Pavick said.

The gallery will not only feature Pavick and Knight's works, but also watercolors by Verna O'Connell and Dorothy Herald and paintings by Rea B. Bohart and Gynn B. Johnson — who just happen to be her sisters.

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

BY HENRIETTA STERN

An introduction

The Carmel River is a valued resource for all peninsula and Carmel Valley residents. It provides us scenic views, numerous recreational opportunities and habitat for steelhead trout. The Carmel River Basin, stretching from its headwaters in the Ventana Wilderness Area to its mouth at Carmel River State Beach, is also the major source of drinking water for Carmel Valley and the peninsula cities. As such, it warrants our continued protection and stewardship.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District

(MPWMD) is one of several agencies responsible for the health and viability of the Carmel River and its environmental resources. It is guided by five elected and two appointed board members, whose policies are implemented by a staff of 13. Our goals include proper management of existing resources, water supply development to meet future demand and drought protection needs, and environmental protection.

The purpose of Carmel River Water News is to better acquaint you with the river as a dynamic physical system and to keep you abreast of our activities which may affect it. This column will appear twice monthly, and will alternately focus on two major topics: the Carmel River Management Program (CRMP) and the proposed New San Clemente Project. What we've learned to date, what we are doing now, what we hope to accomplish, and how you can get involved will be featured.

CARMEL RIVER MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

The Carmel River is constantly changing and its character can change dramatically from season to season, or from year to year. A parched cobble-strewn river bed in summer can become a raging torrent eroding away valuable riverfront property during winter storms.

Subsequent to severe erosion problems experienced in 1980, the district, with the help of a citizen's Carmel River Advisory Committee (CRAC), created the Carmel River Management Program (CRMP). Its objectives include (1) restore river stability by re-establishing healthy riparian (streamside) vegetation and construction of erosion control works; (2) restore and improve the river's fish, wildlife and scenic resources; and (3) protect riverfront property. To achieve these goals, the district formulated a comprehensive management plan with CRAC playing an active role in its implementation. You will learn much more about CRAC and various CRMP activities in future issues.

MEETINGS OF INTEREST

The district board meets on the second Monday of the month at Colton Hall in Monterey. The next meeting convenes 7 p.m. Monday, June 9. Topics include award-winning drought-tolerant landscapes, Carmel Valley Ranch water connection fee, CRMP budget and Schulte restoration project. Next CRAC meeting: 10 a.m. Monday, June 23, The Crossroads community room.

(Editor's note: The Carmel River Water News is a bi-monthly column written by Monterey Peninsula Water Management District staff. Its purpose is to inform Pine Cone readers about district activities relating to the Carmel River and its environs. For more information or suggested topics, readers are invited to contact Henrietta Stern at 649-4866 or P.O. Box 85, Monterey 93940.)

Batter up!

SINCE NO games were played during Memorial Weekend and the following week, this week's write-up covers a two-week period.

Current Bronco standings: Pine Inn, 10-1; Derek Rayne, 8-3; Carmel Valley Disposal, 2-9; La Playa, 2-9.

Pine Inn beat Derek Rayne 10-6 May 21. Derek Rayne pitcher Grant Heinrich held the opposition to one hit and no runs in the first three innings and hit a home run in the top of the fifth, but Mario Bertolucci's three-run blast over the fence and Travis Smith's solo homer helped give Pine Inn the win.

La Playa beat Carmel Valley Disposal May 22, 9-6. Leading hitters were Bain Smith for La Playa and Brooks Juhring for CVD, backed up by La Playa's John Bohlman and CVD's Chad Christensen and Sky Feekes.

Thirty eight runs crossed the plate in a slugfest May 24 between Derek Rayne and La Playa. Final score: 21-17, Derek Rayne. The lead passed back and forth as hits and runs abounded; Derek Rayne scored 10 runs in the third inning along. Leading hitters (all 3-for-4): Steve Biliouris (Derek Rayne), Willie Moore and Dennis Sketchley (La Playa). Also hitting well were Derek Rayne's Heinrich, Lee Walton and Tim Wiesner.

In a season of outstanding games, Pine Inn and Carmel Valley Disposal provided another cliffhanger May 25. CVD's Christensen led the hitting with two ground-rule doubles; Pine Inn shortstop Bertolucci made the game-saving double play with a diving catch in the fourth. Good gloves also belonged to Pine Inn's Ranon Masliyah, Clas Brown and Damon Murphy, and CVD's Feekes and Juhring. Masliyah, Brown and Feekes had key hits; so did Pine Inn's Mark Brophy, who singled in the bottom of the seventh with the score tied 5-5. Brown's single to right drove in Brophy for the game-winning RBI.

Derek Rayne narrowly beat CVD, 8-7, in an exciting game May 31. CVD's Juhring hit a solo home run in the second inning and led the hitting with teammates Christensen, Feekes and Kevin Quinn. Frank Melicia blasted a three-run triple in the seventh to give Derek Rayne the lead they held for the win.

Pine Inn won against La Playa May 31, 17-6. Highlights included a three-run homer by Pine Inn's Smith, teammate Cory Lauterbach's pitching debut and a ground-rule double by La Playa's Sketchley.

In the Mustang division, County Mounties beat Books, Inc. 9-3 May 31. Leading hitters were Doug Schock and Steamer Pease for Books and Justin Koppel for County Mounties. Good fielding was shown by Books' Robbie Koontz and the Mounties' Greg Mayer.

Carmel Realtors beat Yates, Downer in a close game May 31, 7-6. Realtors' Bill Roeting hit an inside-the-park home run; teammates Chris Bleich and Bryan Kranitz also hit well. Leading hitters for Yates, Downer were Jared Feekes, Chris Morgan and Brian O'Rourke.

Cooperative library system board meets

Rose Brazil Carr

A rosary and Mass of Christian burial was celebrated May 20 at Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Salinas for Rose Brazil Carr, a lifelong Monterey County resident, who died May 17 at Driftwood Convalescent Hospital in Salinas. She was 94.

Born Oct. 15, 1891 in the family home at Point Lobos, she was the daughter of Anthony and Mary Brazil, pioneer residents of the Monterey and Carmel Valley area. She was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church, and an honorary life member of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Survivors include four daughters, Dorothy Griffith and Geneva Wells, both of Salinas, Nancy Heple of Sacramento and Alice Stagg of Paradise Pines; one brother, Tony Brazil of Carmel Valley; one sister, Annette Fourcade of Salinas; 14 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Burial took place in the Garden of Memories Cemetery. Struve and LaPorte Funeral Chapel was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the donor's favorite charity.

Americans over the age of 50 "have become a potent $800-billion market with far greater buying power than younger households." So says a Conference Board study commissioned by the CBS television network, which found that over 50 households account for 42 percent of all consumer demand in the U.S., compared with only 28 percent for families under age 35 and 32 percent for people aged 35 to 50. The report noted that older households have a higher average income than those headed by people under 45 and have fully half the nation's discretionary income, money left over after necessities are bought.

News notes:

Wayfarer church names new pastor

Bishop Leontine Kelly has announced the appointment of the Rev. Mr. Charles C. Anker to be the senior pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer, effective July 1. He will succeed Dr. Paul Woudenberg who, after serving as senior pastor since 1975, is retiring on June 30, having accepted the position of chaplain at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach.

Anker has served The Church of the Wayfarer since July 1976, when he joined Woudenberg as associate pastor. They had been associated for five years previously when they had served the First United Methodist Church of Santa Monica.

Anker is a native Californian, born and raised in the Los Angeles area. He graduated from the College of William and Mary in 1957, having served two years with the Army in Korea and Japan. He attended graduate school at the University of Iowa in Iowa City before graduating from New Brunswick Theological Seminary in New Brunswick, New Jersey. He served as Pastor of the Dutch Reform Church of Fort Miller, New York.

In California, he served for two years at St. Paul's United Methodist Church before joining the staff of the First United Methodist Church of Santa Monica. Anker is married to the former Barbara Dykstra.

His service club activities include membership in the Carmel Kiwanis Club of which he is a former president and the Y's Men's Club of the Monterey Peninsula.

Graduation day set for schools

CARMEL HIGH School will celebrate the graduation of the class of 1986 Friday, June 13.

Carmel Middle School also will graduate 170 students into the ninth grade. Ceremonies will be at 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 11 in the gym.

Hawkins, Margaret Snow and Chris Karahale.

In addition, the middle school will sponsor its annual dessert honors night at 7 p.m. June 10 in the gym.

Special speakers on honors night will be Jessica Wescott, Garrett Morris and Emily Rubin.

Legion Post 512 honors flag flyers

THERE'S STILL time to honor patriotic citizens who fly the American flag every day; they will be honored next month by the local chapter of the American Legion.

Carmel American Legion Post 512 will honor citizens, businesses and organizations who fly the flag daily. Flag citations will be awarded at a ceremony scheduled for 7:30 p.m. on Flag Day, Saturday, June 14 at the Carmel Legion Hall, Dolores Street near Eighth Avenue.

To be eligible for a citation a person must fly the flag daily at his home, business or organization in Carmel, lower and upper Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach, and south of Carmel, including the Big Sur area.

The city of Pacific Grove does not have an American Legion post, so the Carmel chapter has invited residences, businesses and organizations in that city to participate in the program.

This is the fourth time the local chapter has sponsored the program. Members of the community can also nominate others who express their patriotism by displaying the flag, according to Paul Artellan, flag display chairman.

Nominations can be made in writing to: Carmel American Legion Post No. 512, P.O. Box 512, Carmel 93921.

CVPOA to discuss master plan EIR

THE CARMEL Valley Property Owners Association will discuss the Carmel Valley Master Plan environmental impact report at its next monthly meeting.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 11 at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church, Robinson Canyon Road, Carmel Valley.

Also on the agenda will be a discussion on mountain bike riding on trails in Garland Park.

1985 traffic accident stats

Nineteen eighty-five was a record-breaking year for highway accident statistics, according to figures just released by the California Highway Patrol. Among the records:

- 216,170 injury accidents, an all-time high.
- 322,703 traffic injuries, also a record high.
- 134 bicycle accident deaths, the most ever, a 42.6 percent jump over 1984.
- The lowest mileage death rate ever recorded in California — 2.4 deaths for every 100 million miles driven in 1985.

There were 4,933 traffic deaths in 1985, a 1.3 percent drop compared with the 1984 figure of 4,999. Drunk drivers were responsible for 1,738 fatalities, down 7.2 percent from 1984. Overall, alcohol was involved in 2,412 traffic deaths, a decrease of 7.5 percent, while there were 66,667 injuries in highway accidents involving alcohol.

Fatal accidents caused by trucks were down 9.2 percent, from 142 in 1984 to 129 in 1985. On the other hand, truck-at-fault injury accidents rose 1.7 percent, from 4,485 in 1984 to 4,560 in 1985.

"We surmise that the publicity surrounding the passage of the 1985 mandatory seat belt law may have caused more people to buckle up even before it took effect," said CHP Commissioner James E. Smith. "If our assumptions prove correct, we should continue to see a drop in motor vehicle occupant deaths throughout 1986."

Other 1985 state totals: Motorcycle accident deaths, 791 (down 5 percent); motorcyclist injuries, 26,243 (down 1.0 percent); pedestrian fatalities, 847 (up 1.1 percent); pedestrian injuries, 15,866 (up 2.9 percent); moped fatalities, 10 (up 33.3 percent); moped injuries, 1,082 (down 12 percent).

"Pedestrian and bicyclist deaths and injuries were up, but motorcycle and moped victims were down," said Smith. "Accidents involving alcohol, including those caused by a drunk driver, were down as well."

All figures are statewide totals that include all law enforcement jurisdictions.

HOW PG&E CONTROLS ENERGY COSTS, WITH SOME HELP FROM ABOVE.

Our cheapest source of electricity is water. The power of falling water can be economically converted into electric power. That's hydroelectricity. PG&E produces as much electricity as possible this way. To do this, PG&E has built a system of sixty-nine hydroelectric powerhouses — one of the largest in the world. Hydroelectricity is an economical source of power you can depend on now and in the future. And that's the silver lining in every cloud.

A.K.A. Berniece Kilpatric Giantvalley

Green Witch works her magic

By ANNE PAPINEAU

"MULTI-DIMENSIONAL woman" is an apt and convenient title that Berniece Kilpatric Giantvalley applies to herself.

Almost any other phrase could be faulted as too lengthy or too limiting, although perpetual energy machine comes close. "Sit still" are two words that Giantvalley hasn't seemed to assimilate in her 60 years devoted, in often overlapping increments, to the roles of mother, gardener, author, inventor, teacher and public speaker.

"I just go, go, go — with four hours sleep a night," she quipped. "I guess I'm high on life. I believe in things — just like a parking place. I drove down to Carmel and said, 'I want this' and it happened."

The Carmel Valley resident's six sons gave her another honorary title, the "good green witch," because of her ability to nurture plants back to life. Giantvalley took a hint from that name, and obtained her college degree in ornamental horticulture. Today she lectures on a host of garden topics on public-supported radio station KAZU, as well as to garden organizations and students from grade-school to post-retirement age.

"The trees stay there and are dependable. You can trust them. Nature does not play favorites, although people often do. Nature keeps her bargains."

"I love to work with children. It's important for kids to know bugs are friendly and are put here in the web of life and are not scary," Giantvalley noted.

Whether presented a plant or a person, Giantvalley is able to volunteer suggestions for its cultivation, suggesting cures for maladies from insect scale to depression. It seems a natural evolution that this student of the practical and the positive is now devoted to the business of recycling people.

"So many times in our culture you're considered useless after a certain age, especially women," Giantvalley observed. "My father and mother were very interested in many things, I feel I'm just a potpourri. We were never told we couldn't do anything. We were treated as people. So many women of my generation are so blasted conditioned in a negative way."

With her own life as a working example, Giantvalley assists older women "back into the mainstream." In her capacity as garden consultant, Giantvalley will often seek the services of women her own age and older.

"There is a Menlo Park-based corporation that hired a utility department to bring several old buildings up to code and to improve the landscape. I got the bid over two men because I told them I could do the landscape job for less."

"The women were wonderful about sitting on cushions under hedges and pulling out ivy, and cleaning up around 100 olive trees. The men wanted to use poison to do it. We planted over 600 big pots of flowers. One Finnish woman who was over 80 told me, 'Thank goodness I can buy wool now to knit for my grandchildren.'"

At turning points in her life Giantvalley reacted not with retreat but action.

"When my husband died 12 years ago it was a huge blow," she recalled. "But we were a closely knit, Irish family. We formed a family company, and if we had two $100 bills to pay, we'd go out and prune trees. All of us worked because when my husband died he didn't leave a lot of money. The youngest delivered the newspaper."

"It doesn't matter if you're 80 years old or disabled. I don't mean to sound pompous, but you can do it. I would like to give certificates to everyone that say 'You Can Do It.'"

Some people have brainstorm and some people have brainstorm and act on them. Giantvalley does not seem guilty of sitting on a brainstorm.

"Twenty-five years ago my husband and I saw a silly shop in Palm Springs called 'Toys for Big Boys,' so I opened a store in Carmel called 'The Him Shop.'"

In another display ofchutzpah, Giantvalley approached representatives of San Francisco Federal Savings and told them they needed someone who was a go-between for persons in management and the everyday customer.

"I've learned to kick fear out of my life because the moment I have fear is when I trip over my own big feet," she said. The savings and loan gave Giantvalley a job demonstrating cooking and gardening in 43 Northern California branches.

Her love of cooking pointed out another need to this "multi-dimensional woman."

"I said 'I'm going to invent something so you can cook a chicken in the microwave.' The result is Giantvalley's own Micro-therm Cookware."

"SIX BOYS KEEP you busy," she added. "I always wanted girls so badly. I sew, I cook, and I wanted to pass it on. But all my children cook, and some can even sew, would you believe it? And they showed me how to fix the carburetor."

"I believe in non-sexism. I think that more and more we're coming out of it. I'm very concerned about women my age — they're so put down. When I'm doing plant demonstrations older people sometimes won't ask something because they don't want to appear stupid. Many times they will go without valuable services. We lay a lot of trips on ourselves."

Giantvalley just concluded a series of seminars for older adults at the Carmel Foundation, and in August will teach a children's course called "Earth Magic with the Green Witch" for the Lyceum of the Monterey Peninsula. Her teachings reflect her concern "for the young and the old, the people that really need me the most."

BERNIECE KILPATRIC Giantvalley, who resides in Carmel Valley, describes herself as a "multi-dimensional woman," an economical title for this gardener, author, inventor, teacher and speaker. (Mike Gardner photograph.)

"I'm a troubleshooter. I think how my whole life has been in the garden, or nurturing, or cooking. I have arthritis in my fingers, but I know that working with the soil is good for them."

She denies the existence of the proverbial green thumb, but puts her faith in "green thoughts."

"I think there are green thoughts," Giantvalley maintained. "People generally think of good things when they think of green — money, plants. I think some people give themselves more permission to think green thoughts."

From her university horticulture studies at Oregon State University and the University of Oregon, Giantvalley gained little respect for what she terms the "mow, blow and go" school of gardening. During her weekly radio show, broadcast from noon to 1 p.m. Thursdays on KAZU, Giantvalley espouses biological pest control and natural fertilizers.

"The reasons we have so many poisons is because these modern fertilizers and pesticides are all byproducts of the petroleum industry since World War II.

"Grooming is most important to make the garden look beautiful," she added.

True to her own philosophy, she assembled six women who "detail" not only gardens but the inside of trucks, as well.

In her spare time, Giantvalley said, she is a stone carver who enjoys making and receiving gifts. She has five grandchildren.

"I don't like older men," she observed. "They want you to bring them beer and sandwiches while they watch the ball game."

"I'm a spazz" she added. "When I was little I was like a mosquito. I'm a very high-energy person. I hate to exercise, but I walk by the ocean. The ocean is my church."

She added that her six sons are now scattered around the western United States.

"I told them, one of you move to the islands — that would be my kick-back place."

But if the ocean is her church, the garden remains her chapel.

"Life is such an illusion," she said, her eyes darting in the direction of a plant that needed feeding. "The trees stay there and are dependable. You can trust them. Nature does not play favorites, although people often do. Nature keeps her bargains."

Festival of Trees workshop changes locale

Betty Rodden, general chairperson of the Festival of the Trees, an organization which supports the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, announced that the Festival of the Trees workshop, has moved from the Masonic Lodge in Monterey to the museum's Holman House in Pacific Grove. The Museum on Wheels program and the Jesters country store workshop are also housed at the Holman House, which was deeded to the museum in 1983.

The Festival of the Trees organization is a group of 35-to 50 volunteers who meet twice a week from February to November to make ornaments for decorating Christmas trees which are later sold to business and professional people in the community.

This year's representative to the community is Betty Finnigan of Monterey. The completely decorated trees are displayed at the Monterey Fairgrounds the first week of December, and annually serve to usher in the holiday season for peninsula residents. At the close of the festival, the trees are wrapped and delivered by the volunteers to the offices or homes of the underwriters so that they may be enjoyed throughout the holiday season.

The move to Holman House will alleviate the need for the festival volunteers to climb 32 steps to their windowless workroom at the Masonic Temple. Hot water will also be an amenity for volunteers who are making the decorations all year long in preparation for the big event. The new location will also provide them with a handicapped accessible ramp and ample space.

Sci fi film examines plight of last human survivors on earth

THE QUIET EARTH, a science fiction film that explores the possibilities of being the last person on earth, will be screened as a benefit for the Monterey Film Festival.

The peninsula premiere of The Quiet Earth will take place 1 p.m. Sunday, June 8 at the Dream Theater, 301 Prescott Ave. at Light-house in Monterey.

Directed by New Zealand's Geoff Murphy and based on a novel by Craig Harrison, the film depicts what it would be like to be the last few humans on earth. Its three characters, Bravo Lawrence as Zac Hobson, Alison Routledge as Joanne and Peter Smith as Api, meet as earth's only survivors. According to film critic Kirk Honeycutt, "The dynamics among these three supercharge the film's startling climax."

Tickets are $5 in advance, $6 at the door. Advance tickets can be purchased at the Dream Theater, Bookworks in Pacific Grove and at Center Stage Ticketing, 467 Alvarado St., Suite 11 (second floor), in Monterey. Funds from the screening will be used to help finance the inaugural Monterey Film Festival, scheduled Feb. 5-8, 1987.

The festival is designed to promote awareness and appreciation of films and the film industry. It will feature first-run films, foreign works, productions shot on location in Monterey County and films starring celebrities who reside in the Monterey area, as well as documentaries, animated film's, women's films, videos and film workshops.

For more information about the Monterey Film Festival, call 649-8887.

Jazz All Stars will make music

AN EVENING with the Jazz All Stars — Mel Torme, Buddy DeFranco and Terry Gibbs, will be presented Friday, June 6 at Sherwood Hall, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

Tickets are $10.50, $14.50 and $17.50 for the 8 p.m. concert.

Torme has been a professional entertainer for more than 40 years. He has won critical and audience acclaim — as a singer, movie star, composer, musical arranger, radio performer, drummer, TV talk show host, dramatic actor, TV producer, vaudeville performer and author.

For the past seven years, he has been a headliner at the Sahara, Sands and MGM Grand hotels and the Fairmont hotels. He is a rare performer who writes and orchestrates his own musical arrangements.

In 1980 Torme's performances at both the Hollywood Bowl and Carnegie Hall displayed "sold out" signs, and the week of October 27th was proclaimed by Mayor Tom Bradley as Mel Torme Week in Los Angeles, commemorating his 50th anniversary in show business.

In 1983, Torme was awarded the Grammy as Best Male Vocalist for his album "An Evening With George Shearing and Mel Torme." He again received this award in 1984 for his album "Top Drawer," also with George Shearing. He received the news as he completed a performance for President and Mrs. Reagan at a White House State Dinner.

Buddy DeFranco is the first jazz clarinetist to play in the modern idiom of the greats, Charlie Parker and Dizzy Gillespie, and is one of the most imaginative clarinetists today. Credited with the bringing of modern jazz to the clarinet, DeFranco is a versatile player capable of displaying several moods, feelings and styles.

DeFranco has the unprecedented distinction of winning 19 Downbeat Magazine Awards, nine Metronome Magazine Awards, and 16 Playboy All-Stars Awards as the number one jazz clarinetist.

Gibbs has the distinction of being the only person nominated in four categories of the Playboy Jazz Club every year since its inception. They include Best Vibraphonist, Best Quartet, Best Big Band and Best Bandleader.

To date, Gibbs has more than 35 long-playing albums to his credit, and has written more than 300 original compositions of which about 250 have been recorded by Nat King Cole, Les Brown, Cannon Ball Adderley and Count Basie.

Change is in the wind at Robles Del Rio Lodge

By VICTORIA ANDREWS

DANIEL BARDUZZI, formerly executive chef at The Lodge in Pebble Beach and at Highlands Inn in Carmel Highlands, will open a restaurant at Robles Del Rio Lodge in Carmel Valley. (Victoria Andrews photo.)

A beloved Carmel Valley tradition has quietly reawakened in the hills above Rosie's Cracker Barrel. The Robles Del Rio Lodge is once again luring guests from near and far to enjoy its rustic elegance.

The Ron Gurries clan is responsible for the rejuvenation of the lodge, which is the oldest inland resort in the area. No strangers to the hotel business, the Gurries are well-known locally for Tickle Pink, their popular inn in the Carmel Highlands.

Each of the seven Gurries brings to the lodge a wide range of talent coupled with an uncanny intuition about making guests feel at ease. Yolanda Gurries, who looks more like her five children's sister than their mother, is the artistic mastermind behind the decor which is Carmel Valley French, for lack of a more original term.

Eldest son Glen is the general partner in the venture and lives on the premises with his wife Adreana and their 19-month-old son Nicholas. His genial manner belies a keen eye for detail which keeps him on the move continuously. However, on the move does not mean rushing. A tranquility pervades the homey resort, so that while there is perpetual activity, the affairs of the day are conducted in an easy, friendly way.

One could write for days in praise of the

SITUATED HIGH IN the hills above Carmel Valley, Robles Del Rio Lodge is undergoing a renaissance. It will soon be charming ambience, the beautiful views, or all the available activities on the 20 acres, but the real news there is about great food.

Daniel Barduzzi, famed chef and now-permanent resident, is preparing to open a new restaurant at the lodge which will be called The Ridge. Slated to open early in June, the restaurant is a distinct culinary coup for the peninsula and an utter victory for the Valley.

A perusal of Barduzzi's menu reflects both his intense training in classical French cuisine and an artistic inspiration for pleasing the contemporary California palate. Barduzzi is in partnership in this venture with Roger Cabanel who formerly owned Vive La Difference at the mouth of the Valley, and the two have produced a variety of offerings which read like an epicurean symphony.

The orchestration of Barduzzi's menu depends almost entirely on Monterey agriculture. Noting that at least 60 varieties of vegetables are available at the market in Salinas, Barduzzi compares California cuisine with French regional cooking, where the ingredients of a basic classical dish vary from place to place, depending on what is fresh and locally available.

Barduzzi's fame as a master chef is international. However, he has made his mark on local restaurantgoers also, first as executive chef and food and beverage manager at The home to a new restaurant, The Ridge, which will serve California-inspired continental cuisine. (Victoria Andrews photo.)

Lodge at Pebble Beach, and later at the Highlands Inn, where he opened the new restaurant in late 1983.

"It is one thing to create, another to eat," observed Barduzzi about the present rage for innovative cuisine, sometimes achieved at the expense of one's tastebuds. When Barduzzi puts a small sprig of thyme on your plate, that herb must do more than be decorative; it must enhance the flavor of the food and be aromatically compatible as well.

One would expect great things from Barduzzi, just from reading his resume. But as skilled as he is in the technical aspect of food management, the ebullient Frenchman's prowess comes from his awareness of how to be gastronomically creative and still please even the most jaded palate.

Whether he is preparing a duckling salad, which I plan to include in my first official meal at The Ridge, or tossing a pasta primavera to accompany one of several fish entrees, Barduzzi is always the eclectic artist. Not surprisingly, his musical tastes run the gamut from Albinoni to the Beatles, and it would hardly be a surprise to discover that Debussy provided the inspiration for, say, his stir-fried chicken with red peppers.

Horses are another of Barduzzi's passions, though he has had little time to spend riding since taking on the new restaurant. In addition Barduzzi is one of the rare masters who reduces only stock, but not staff. They all seem to adore him, and the result for the guests is a very warm ambience. So as you plan your summer rambles around the county, be sure to head the list with a visit to the Robles Del Rio Lodge and a meal at The Ridge. It will be open every day for lunch and dinner, and brunch will be served on Sundays.

As the date for the restaurant's opening is not quite certain, call for reservations before heading up there. If you're very lucky, Daniel will answer the phone and say "Allo, zee Reege," and you will know you've called the right place.

Entertainment, food co-star at Mid-Valley play day

PLAY DAY arrives noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 7 at the Mid-Valley Shopping Center in Carmel Valley.

The celebration will feature live music, free face painting and Greek dance. The Carmel Youth Center will sell refreshments.

From 1 to 2 p.m. the Hellenic Greek Folk Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula will perform. Their three medleys of dance embrace Greek, Armenian and Cretan styles.

The dancers under the direction of Maxine Myer have chosen dances of varying rhythms and styles from both the Greek mainland and islands. Some of the dances date to ancient times while others are modern taverna dances. The dances express the soul of the people, their loves, beliefs, fears and joys. The dances of Greece are a living art form, for the new dances and steps are still evolving.

The music has become familiar to the Western ear through the movies of Zorba and Never on Sunday.

For the Hellenic dancers Greek dancing has become a way of life. The troupe has been performing the past four years at various parties and functions at such sites as Kalisa's, Fort Ord, Gentrain, Santa Cruz Greek Festivals, Feast of Lanterns, the Epicurean Club, KAZU benefit, AAUW Greek party, The Great Monterey Squid Festival, Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and the Monterey Library.

The group consists of a variety of people with different professions, interests and ages. There is an architect, designer-decorator, data analyst, nursing educator, director of nursing education, administrative nursing supervisor, vice president for Alliance on Medically Ill, housekeeper, handwriting analyst, elementary school teacher and chemistry teacher. Besides Greek dancing they are interested in international dancing, country dancing, teaching Israeli dancing, modern dance and ballet, acupuncture therapy, gardening, tennis, bridge tournaments, hosting the Greek adventure hour on KAZU, writing poetry with art, wine making and gourmet cooking.

Greek costumes reflect the history of their wearers. Materials include wool, hemp and, more recently, cotton. The colors can be bright and strong. The ornamentation is strongly geometric—zigzags, diamonds, triangles—surprisingly similar to American Southwest Indian designs.

Maxine Myer has been teaching Greek folk dances for 12 years, first at the Taverna Athena in Oakland and now at Sunset Center. She teaches six classes there and directs two dance groups, the Hellenic dancers and the Village Greek dancers who perform monthly at convalescent hospitals.

Sculptures by Carol Setterlund to focus on wind, water and sand

AN EXCLUSIVE showing of the series, "Elements: Wind, Water and Sand" by Carol Setterlund is featured at the Coast Gallery in Big Sur.

Nineteen large wood sculptures make up the series, each embodying in its design and execution the sense of rhythm and balance between power and fragility found in nature.

All of Setterlund's sculptures are large, starting as slabs cut by the artist, with a chain saw, from the stumps of gigantic redwoods, felled a score or more years ago in the old logging areas of northern California. The rough wood is formed into spheres or discs, then carved and refined with power tools, and finished by hand.

Gallery hours at Coast Gallery Big Sur are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Six additional sculptures by Carol Setterlund are currently on display at gallery owner Gary Koepfel's Coast Gallery Maui, in Hawaii.

Museum shows 'complex' designs

Colorful, complex works by San Francisco artist Shari Lamanet will be presented in the Coburn Gallery at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Lamanet's works contain multiple depictions of fragmented images that recall symbols, events, actions and characters. Images are juxtaposed against each other in an ad hoc fashion, their relationships delineated by variations of media and texture.

Although the sense of improvisational juxtaposition of images may create a sense of enigma or ambiguity for some viewers, the strength of the visual impression is lasting and may be assessed as a fitting parallel to the somewhat confusing state of today's society.

Lamanet received her B.F.A. and M.F.A. degrees from the San Francisco Art Institute. She has exhibited nation-wide and her works are presented at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art through the courtesy of the Bruce Velick Gallery, San Francisco.

The museum is at 559 Pacific St. in downtown Monterey. Admission to the museum is free 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays. The show dates are Saturday, June 7 through August 10.

Benefit features Bowman paintings

WORKS BY Carl Bowman and Marilyn Slingerland will be featured throughout June at the Seaside City Hall Art Gallery. An opening reception is planned at 7 p.m. Friday, June 6, to benefit the art scholarship funds of the City of Seaside Art Commission and the Monterey Peninsula

Art Foundation. Bowman's oil paintings consist of landscapes, still-lives and portraits. His work has been displayed at the Monterey County Fair, East-West Gallery in San Francisco and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Black and white images highlighted at the Friends

A COLLECTION OF black and white photographs by Johnny Alterman and Huntington Witherill opens Friday, June 6 at the Friends of Photography Gallery in Carmel. A reception for the artists is scheduled from 8 to 10 p.m. in the gallery.

Johnny Alterman's "Vertical Walkways" series was made in San Francisco during the early 1980s. These dark, richly printed photographs, made from four-by-five-inch negatives, depict the stone and cement stairways that replace streets on the steeper hills of the city. They explore the interaction between the stonework and the overgrown foliage surrounding it, while the sometimes fleeting human presence adds a sense of mystery. The prints have a somber tone that reflects a quiet interplay between nature and urban structure.

A 1969 graduate of the University of Miami Law School, Alterman began his serious study of photography in the 1970s with a series of workshops at Penland School of Crafts in North Carolina. He moved to San Francisco in 1977 and graduated with a master of arts degree in 1979 from San Francisco State University. Alterman was a resident of San Francisco until this year when he returned to live and work in Miami.

Huntington Witherill studied for a career in music performance and orchestration before beginning his work in photography. A resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1972, he was previously a student of photography at both the California Institute of the Arts and Santa Monica City College. He has taught workshops for The Friends of Photography, as well as for the University of California, Santa Cruz and Monterey Peninsula College.

Witherill's landscape photographs in this exhibition have been made in the past four years at various locations in the United States, particularly in California and the Southwest. Many of the prints, from five-by-seven-inch negatives, reflect the distinctive, high-key printing style that he has developed. While his subject matter is that of traditional landscape photography, his response to the landscape and his printing style create an illusion of compressed space that often makes the images appear to be collaged.

The Friends of Photography Gallery is located in Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily. For additional information, call 624-6330.

WORKS BY MONTEREY photographer Huntington Witherill can be viewed in the exhibit of black and white photographs opening this week at The Friends of Photography Gallery in Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

JACKHAMMER, a 1982 silver print by Johnny Alterman, is among the works to be featured in the new show of black and white photographs at The Friends of Photography Gallery in Carmel. A reception will take place 8 to 10 p.m. Friday, June 6.

Group graphics exhibit opens at Carmel Art Association

A GROUP GRAPHICS show, works by Y.S. Lim and watercolors by Harold Mason are the featured exhibits beginning Thursday, June 5 in the galleries of the Carmel Art Association.

Several of the more than 125 CAA members will participate in the show of works in the Beardsley Gallery. Among those whose works will be featured are George DeGroat, Alex Gonzales, Gus Arriola, Louise Cardeiro Boyer and Virginia Conroy.

The works of Y.S. Lim will be featured exclusively in the Graphics Room.

"Design-Light-and-Pattern" is the title of an exhibit of acrylic paintings and watercolors by Harold Mason, to be exhibited in the Center Gallery.

A member of the CAA for more than two decades, Mason's works have been shown in several U.S. cities and features in shows presented by the West Coast Watercolor Society, Western Association of Art Museums, Royal Watercolor Society and Masters of American Watercolor in Los Angeles.

Mason studied art at both California State University at Fresno and the Art Center School of Design in Pasadena. He has taught art up to the college level and served as judge for several competitions.

Theme of Mason's paintings is the art of Native American tribes dating back to 900 A.D. Mason's years of concentrating on the symbol-inscribed pottery of Indians dovetails with repeated trips to the Southwest with his family.

Both shows will continue through July 1. The galleries of the Carmel Art Association are located on Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues in Carmel. For exhibit details, call 624-6176.

ROUNDUP

Jester's 'Salon VI' scheduled

The Jesters, the fund-raising group of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, announces that their June salon will feature Barclay Ferguson and his wife, Harriet, who will speak on "New Realism from the Artist's Eye." The lecture will be presented 3 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday, June 8 at the Castro-Work Adobe. Tea, tea sandwiches and "no-host infusions" will be served and some reservations may be available at $6 each.

Ferguson, born in Scotland, has lived on the Monterey Peninsula since the early '70s, after having worked in England, Canada and Mexico as an artist. His style has ranged from academic modernism to abstraction to painstaking representational images, yet all of his works have shown a concern with light, texture and space.

For further information about his lecture, one in a series of informal salons organized by the Jesters, call 624-5431 or 625-1284.

Batiks, silk paintings displayed

Silk paintings and batiks by Leslie Kranz will be exhibited through June at the Fort Ord Arts and Crafts Gallery. In the corridor will be displayed photographs by Tom McCartney.

An artists' reception is planned 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, June 8. To visit the gallery, request a pass at the Fort Ord main gate. Gallery hours are 1 to 10 p.m. Mondays through Wednesdays; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Michel Royston designs exhibited

Jewelry and flatware designed by Michel Royston will be shown at Concepts, Sixth Avenue and Mission Street, Carmel.

According to Royston, "Lines are the embodiment of movement, holding tension, releases and rhythms. The lines of my metalwork interact with each other and with the lines, planes and motion of the human form for the pleasure of the beholder. Careful work-hardening of the metal through forging makes possible the strength and delicacy of the pieces."

A reception for the artist will take place 4 to 7 p.m. Sunday, June 8. For details, call 624-0661.

TAPESTRY WEAVINGS BY Joana Goslinski will be shown at the Carl Cherry Foundation, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

Tapestry wavings featured at Cherry Foundation gallery

ARTIST JOANA Goslinski will show her tapestry weavings at the Cherry Foundation, Fourth and Guadalupe, in Carmel. The exhibit, "Textile Art," will open with a 2 to 4:30 p.m. reception on Saturday, June 7.

Born in California, Goslinski studied fine arts at San Diego City College, and apprenticed with weavers in California and Spain. She studied tapestry, etching and sculpting at schools in Barcelona.

Her weavings have been in numerous collective exhibits in the United States and Spain; this will be her sixth individual showing.

Spanish art critic Fernando Zamanillo wrote of her work, "There is dramatic and textural enrichment in her weavings and also a formal richness in the designs."

The exhibit is sponsored by the Carl Cherry Foundation, and will run through June 29. For more information, call the foundation at 624-7491.

A Day to Remember

Special ceremony honors Carmel vets

Carmel veterans gathered at Devendorf Park Memorial Day Friday, May 30 to remember those who made the greatest sacrifice for others. Special guest speaker was retired Lt. Gen. Robert Coffin, who reminded those present that "the United States is seen as the hope of the world." Remembering that day, clockwise from top left were: retired Col. J.P. Mandl, who served in the navy in World War I and the army in World War II; Specialist Marcel Davis, who is one of Ft. Ord's honor guards that appear at special memorials dressed as Continental Army soldiers; the Ft. Ord band led by Chief Warrant Officer Robert O'Brien; and Sgt. Craig Archer, who played the traditional taps.

A NEW WORLD-WIDE SOTHEBY'S INTERNATIONAL REALTY REAL ESTATE MARKETING/REFERRAL RELOCATION NETWORK

Marketing Program

Towle Capital Corporation and Garden Court Realty are the exclusive affiliates of Sotheby's International Realty for Monterey County. Sotheby's founded in London in 1744, is the world's oldest and largest art auction firm. Drawing on almost 250 years of experience, Sotheby's global marketing efforts are professionally targeted to reach qualified buyers. In addition to 12 offices in North America, there are more than 40 offices and representatives throughout the world, together with 300 Sotheby's affiliated real estate offices throughout the nation and approximately 10,000 agents associated with these firms.

Sotheby's International Realty specializes in the marketing and sale of important properties, offering a service that is regarded as the most comprehensive real estate marketing program available. For each listing Sotheby's tailors a carefully designed promotional program, which includes:

1. Brochure — 4,000 lavishly produced, full-color brochures, comprehensively detailing and properly depicting the property and its features.
2. Direct Mail. The brochure is distributed on a worldwide basis to all Sotheby's offices, representatives, and 300 affiliate brokers, as well as to proprietary lists comprising an international client base and select real estate brokers and agents.
3. Advertising: To most effectively market and present a property, Sotheby's in-house staff designs an individualized advertising campaign tailored to the property. Such advertisements appear in Town & Country, Connoisseur, The Wall Street Journal, foreign publications and leading "City" newspapers and magazines. Because of Sotheby's excellent name recognition, response to these ads is superior, often far better than replies to ads placed by local brokers or owners themselves. In addition, each listing appears in Sotheby's three outstanding in-house publications, distributed through proprietary mailing lists. These include Sotheby's "INTERNATIONAL PREVIEW," a lovely art publication with a significant European circulation of 35,000; Sotheby's "NEWSLETTER," published 10 times a year and distributed to over 45,000 active buyers and sellers of fine art and real estate; and Sotheby's "PORTFOLIO OF DISTINCTIVE PROPERTIES," an important real estate publication featuring each listing and distributed to more than 100,000 clients on the Sotheby's preferred mailing lists.
4. Public Relations. All clients' properties benefit from the continuous press coverage Sotheby's receives.

Sotheby's International Realty can provide a property with the most complete service available in the real estate marketplace.

For details on this superior service, please contact us at Towle Capital Corporation or Garden Court Realty. Our full staff of professionals in two conveniently located offices is waiting to serve you.

PACIFIC PANORAMA

Nestled into a Big Sur hillside is the adobe-walled, architect-designed, passive-solar gem of a home, pictured above. Newly completed, and hand-crafted by Big Sur artisans, the house fits comfortably on its site and is a delight to the eye.

Complete in every detail, even to furnishings, this perfect hideaway is ready to move into today. The living/dining/kitchen area overlooks entrance patio, and gently curving hills, to the sea beyond. Bedroom and bath enjoys similar views.

From each room, one enjoys vistas in all directions. Floor to ceiling windows admit winter sun to warm adobe walls. The well-planned storage areas, plus 2 car garage, utility room and large wine-cellar, add to livability and enlargement potential. The distant ridge line marks the southern boundary of Andrew Molera State Park.

Unusual for Big Sur property, most of the 5-acre site is usable. Gardens, orchards, vineyards and livestock would enable an owner to be nearly self-sufficient in this ideal climate. A studio/guest/caretaker building creates additional flexibility. $238,500. Please contact our Coast Properties Division for more information. Don't miss this one!
